BURNING OF A STEAMER.

Narrow Escape of the Crew and Passengers of a St. Lawrence Steamer—One Lady Drowned.

BROCKVILLE, Ontario, June 11.—The Royal Mail line steamer Kingston was burned to the water's edge at 1½ o'clock this afternoon, while on her up trip, off Grenadier Island, eighteen miles above Brockville. She had a full cargo of freight and about 100 passengers, all of whom escaped with the exception of a lady said to be Mrs. Dr. Jorss, of Montreal, who jumped from the stern of the boat with a life-preserver not properly adjusted. The boat was run ashore on Grenadier Island, where the fire, which originated in the state-room, midship, over the engine, spread with such rapidity that only one boat could be lowered, which was filled with women and children, but swamped on reaching the water. The other passengers and the crew jumped into the water and struggled ashore. The propeller Dominion was hailed, and brought the passengers up to Brockville. Nothing of the cargo or baggage was saved. The loss of the steamer is about $75,000, insured for $60,000.

HAYTI AND SAN DOMINGO.

Damages Claimed against Hayti for the Outrage on the United States Consul at St. Marc—War Imminent Between the Black Republics.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, June 1.—The United States steam-ship Nipsic arrived here today.

It is reported that the American Government claims $20,000 damages, arising out of the difficulty between its Consul at St. Marc and the native Government.

The Government is concentrating troops at Cape Haytien, fearing another attack from the San Domingo frontiers. It is rumored that the Haytian Government intends to declare war against BAEZ, who is accused of being the instigator of the invasion of Haytian territory.

SAN DOMINGO, May 30, via HAVANA, June 11.—President BAEZ is arming all his available forces and sending them to the Haytian frontier. A rumor is current here that the Haytians intend an early invasion of the Republic.

VENEZUELA.

Quesada Offers to Sell the Virginius—Minister Becerra of Spanish Men-of-War Frustrated—The Revolution Dead.

HAVANA, June 11.—The Diario says QUESADA has offered the steamer Virginius to the Venezuelan Government for $42,000. The Spanish steamer Puerto has arrived at Puerto Cabello, but neither the Pizarro or the Arapiles could get sufficiently near the Virginius to carry out certain determined orders which they have received, their draft being too great. It is rumored that QUESADA intended to pay his debts with the proceeds of the sale of the Virginius and then go to Europe.

CARACAS, May 28, via HAVANA, June 11.—The revolution is at an end. After his defeat at Tinaquillo, SALAZAR fled, but was pursued and captured by Gen. COLINA. He was tried by a Court-martial, composed of twenty-three officers, and was sentenced to be executed on the 17th of June, in presence of the whole army.

A few insignificant bands of revolutionists remain in the mountains.

DEFEAT OF THE ATALANTAS.

Comments of the London Press on the Result of the Race.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The city Press comment as follows on the international boat race of yesterday:

The Times says the simple fact is that the Americans have not yet learned, or they have lost, the true style of rowing. They neglect the cardinal principles of effective rowing. The wonder is that they were able to make a gallant effort with such a defective method. We hope the Americans will learn how to row; then they may put our oarsmen to severer tests.

The Post says the result of the race shows that we have nothing to learn from the Americans. The latter were inferior in physique and style. They had everything their own way. The choice of water was given them, delays were conceded, and the absence of cox'swains agreed to; and although they rowed two stokes per minute more than the Londoners, they were easily outstripped. The result convinces us that the English style is the best now practiced. It fears the American Press will exaggerate the importance of the unfortunate foul which the Atalantas had toward the close of the race.

The Daily Telegraph says: "This race illustrates our national energy. Stalwart strength and dogged adherence to the ways we deem best hold their own against the dash and daring of our American kinsfolk. Both crews belong to the Saxon race, which is the only one which has the nerve and pluck to preserve manly sports. When the tables are turned, and our neighbors across the water win a victory, we shall regard it as an English triumph."

The Standard declares a more hollow affair was never witnessed. The Americans were not good enough to win an ordinary country regatta. The effect will be to prevent the recurrence of international matches for some years. The moral to be drawn is that American oarsmen must learn the first elements before coming 3,000 miles to row.

FREEZE IN NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Railroad Bridges and Track Beds Washed Away by Swollen Rivers and Brooks of Logs.

CONCORD, N. H., June 11.—A freshet at Whitefield, last night, destroyed property valued at $100,000. Several dams, bridges and buildings were washed away, and the tracks of the Boston, Concord and Montreal Railroad destroyed for a distance of a mile and a quarter.

The bridge across the river between Franklin and East Franklin was carried away last night by a drive of logs. The river is rising rapidly, and the remaining bridges are considered to be in danger.

The bridge across the Merrimac River at Sewell's Falls, near Webersville, was carried away by the drive of logs this morning.

THE OHIO TORNADO.

Later Results of the Whirlwind—Two Villages Cut Through and Fifty Persons Injured—Two Children Killed.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 11.—Later particulars from the scene of the tornado which visited Quincy and De Graff, in Logan County, on Saturday evening, show that it was more terrible and destructive than the first reports indicated. A sultry day was followed by the appearance of a cloud in the West at 5 o'clock in the evening, which gathered blackness and assumed fearful rapidity. A heavy wind set in, and at six o'clock the whirlwind struck the earth five miles from Quincy, moving north-west wardly. The destroyer was hardly more than five minutes in reaching Quincy, through which it passed, making a clean sweep of houses, trees and fences along a path which fortunately was comparatively narrow. In the village fifty or sixty dwellings and stores, and two churches, and as many more shops, stables, and out-buildings were unroofed, rocked upon their foundations or demolished. The air was literally filled with flying weather-boards, furniture, laths, and plaster. A parlor stove was caught up by the wind and hurled through the air, and falling upon a woman crushed her so that she died.

The Baptist and Methodist Episcopal churches were completely destroyed. The tornado on the way to De Graff struck Bosco Bourine-mill, three stories high, containing 2,000 bushels of grain, moving the building nine inches upon its foundation and carrying away the roof and a portion of the fifth story. It plowed its way through De Graff, another destruction in its path, but hurting fewer persons and injuring a less number of buildings. After leaving De Graff it passed several settlements, and finally rose from the earth and was seen for miles, carrying in its funnel-shaped form timber, rails and debris which it had gathered in its destructive march.

The papers this morning give the names of thirty-nine injured in Quincy, and eleven in De Graff, the list not comprising all the injured in the former village. Mrs. RALL, reported to have been killed in De Graff, is yet living. Two of her children were killed. Mrs. GLICK, in Quincy, has since died from injuries received.

GRANT AND WILSON.

Enthusiastic Ratification Meeting in Plainfield, N. J.

The Republicans of Plainfield held a ratification meeting at Lane's Hall last evening.

The occasion was one of interest to the entire county, since it was the first public expression of the people of that part of the State in favor of the nominations of the National Convention. Before the hour arrived for opening the meeting, the spacious hall was filled, and subsequently large numbers stood around the doorway or went away, unable to get a seat. The Raritan Band was carried through the principal streets to the hall in a wagon drawn by four gaily-decked horses.

The platform inside the hall was occupied by a large company of Plainfield's most prominent citizens, one of whom, Mr. ALFRED SMITH, presided. He introduced as the first speaker Col. T. B. THORPE, of New-York, who spoke for half an hour to the satisfaction and amusement of the audience. He said he could indorse the nominations made at Philadelphia with a degree of satisfaction such as he had not felt with regard to any previous nomination made in a National Convention.

The speaker traced the career of the President from his obscure tannery to the tent of the commander-in-Chief and said that he was the lover of truth which gave courage to the Potomac army until they crowned all the victories and avenged all the previous defeats of the war at Appomattox. But for GRANT'S great work his slanderers in the Senate would not have a Senate Chamber in which to throw mud at his great character. The speaker concluded with an exhortation to the Republicans of New-Jersey to unite in an effort to give the vote of the State to the Republican nominees and not, by dissensions and lack of organization to throw it into the hands of the Democrats.

After music by the band and a song by the Glee Club, the Chairman, introduced Dr. DAVID BALL, of New-York. He spoke with enthusiasm of the men whom the Republicans present to the country for the highest offices, asserting that in Gen. GRANT the people had a man who had "never been beaten and never will be," while HENRY WILSON was presented with all the recommendations following a life spent without private profit in the public service. The workingmen had in him a representative—one of their number, who had risen by hard struggle from the shoemaker's bench to the Senator's chair, and whose integrity or fidelity to their interests had never been assailed.

Hon. HENRY W. WILSON, of Newark, followed in an able speech upon the general issues of the canvass, eliciting frequent and hearty applause from the audience. The meeting, at 11 o'clock, broke up, with three times three cheers for the National Republican candidates.

FROM ANNAPOLIS.

A Maryland County Convention—Cadet Midshipmen—Cruise of the Practice-Ship Constellation.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, June 11.—The Democratic County Convention for Anne Arundel met here today, and sent a majority delegation to the State Convention opposed to any nominations for President and Vice-President.

The following candidates passed examinations, additional to those already published, and are now cadet midshipmen: Walter McLean, New-York; Augustus C. Alvry, District of Columbia; Temptin Morris Potts, District of Columbia; Caleb Victor Chesbonnier, Maryland, Presidential appointees; DeWitt Conman, Virginia; Haney Mason Derrbaugh, Ohio; John Franklin Cheek, Indiana; Clare Boult, Ohio; Chas. Curtis Rogers, Tennessee; Arthur Beal Frennel, Massachusetts; Alex. Rogers Mitchell, Maryland; Edward Dunbar Leach, Indiana; Wm. Reese Rush, Louisiana; Horace Tuttle Jones, New-York; Albert Frederick Paff, Missouri; Ed. Marekatz, Wisconsin; Jno. Hy. McNasser, Wyoming Territory; David Ward Jones, Ohio.

The practice-ship Constellation, with the midshipmen aboard, sailed from this port this morning for the usual Summer practice cruise, and will continue at sea about three weeks; thence along the northern coast of the United States. She will return here about the 28th of September.

TROTTING.

Beacon Park, Boston—Trotting Yesterday.

BOSTON, June 11.—There was a large crowd of people at the Beacon Park races today.

The first race, a sweepstakes of $500, was won by McSHANE'S g. g. Tiletson, beating WOODRUFF'S s. m. Josephine, and CUDDITT'S b. m. Lottie. Time, 2:30, 2:40, 2:43.

The race for horses that never beat 2:35, was won by GOLDSMITH'S b. m. Huntress, beating CARPENTER'S s. m. Susie, the only other started. Time, 2:36, 2:34¼, 2:37¼, 2:39¼. Susie won the first heat.

Trotting at the Eastern Dutchess Fair Grounds.

AMENIA, N. Y., June 11.—At the Eastern Dutchess Fair Grounds today the 2:40 and 2:28 purses were trotted for. The track is still soft.

Coroner K., Walter, Washburn Maid and Dutchess Maid were the contestants in the 2:40 race, which was won by Coroner K. in three straight heats. Time—2:41¾, 2:41½ and 2:40¾.

J. D. McMann, Grey Jack, Dresden and Dutch Boy competed for the 2:28 purse. McMann won the first heat, and Grey Jack the next three. Dresden took third money and Dutch Boy was distanced. Time: 2:31, 2:36¾, 2:36¼, 2:36.

The three-minute and 2:33 races will come off to-morrow. The double-team race and races free to all will be run on Thursday.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis and Probabilities.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12—1 A. M.—The lowest barometer has moved eastward over upper Michigan into Canada and north of the lower lakes, accompanied by light to fresh southerly winds, veering to westerly, cloudy weather and occasional rain with thunder. Clear weather is now prevailing over the Southern and East and Middle Atlantic States, with light southerly to westerly winds; clear and partially cloudy weather north and west of the Ohio Valley, with southerly to westerly winds, and over the northern portion of the Middle and New-England States, with light to fresh south-westerly winds.

PROBABILITIES.

Clear weather prevail on Wednesday very generally over the Southern and East and Middle Atlantic States, with light to fresh southerly to westerly winds, and from the lower Missouri Valley to the upper lakes with light to fresh westerly winds; partially cloudy and possibly threatening weather from Missouri and Kentucky northeastward over northern portions of the Middle and New-England States, with light to fresh south-westerly winds, veering to north-westerly. Dangerous winds are not anticipated.

Fight in a Tenement-House.

At a late hour last night, JOHN BURKE and JULIA O'KEEFE, both residents of, the tenement-house, No. 434 East Eleventh-street, engaged in a fight at the above-mentioned house. During the fracas BURKE stabbed JULIA in the arm with a pocket-knife, inflicting a severe wound, and JULIA struck BURKE on the head with a brick, causing a severe scalp-wound. Both the belligerents were attended by Police Surgeon MACLAY, and locked up.

THE DESERTED CAPITAL

Flight of Officials, Representatives, Senators, and Everbody.

The Tribune's Latest Suppression of the Truth—The Oregon Senatorship—Gen. Grant's Original Draft of the Letter of Acceptance—Bills and Cards—Nations that Failed.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The city has become depopulated of official presence with wonderful rapidity. Yesterday the streets were full; today they are deserted. The change has come so suddenly that it seems quite unreal. The absence of the President and some members of the Cabinet, however, heightens the reality of the fact, and the transition is at once from scenes of busy excitement to dull times and hot weather. We shall have, nevertheless, a political atmosphere for the Summer months, which will make Washington more tenable for the newspaper folks who remain than it would otherwise be. Fully two-thirds of the members of both Houses have gone; many had had their trunks packed for a week, and scampered off by last night's train, even before the Speaker's gavel fell. The remainder will mostly leave to-morrow and next day. Vice-President COLFAX and family leave in the morning for their home at South Bend, Ind., and Speaker BLAINE and family leave at the same time for Augusta, Me. Mr. DAWES has already gone, but Gen. GARFIELD remains for a week. Senator WILSON will tarry but a short time, but Mr. SUMNER will remain until after the Baltimore Convention. Senator POMEROY'S family will Summer at Westerly, R. I., while he will go to Kansas. Senator CONKLING leaves to-morrow morning for Utica, accompanied by his family.

REPUBLICAN CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

The Congressional Republican Executive Committee will meet to-morrow at 11 A. M., to organize a plan for immediately entering upon the work of the campaign. Hon. J. M. EDMUNDS is the new Secretary, who succeeds Col. PLATT, and is thoroughly familiar with the labors before him, besides possessing a thoroughly-practical energy for their execution. Gen. COWAN, of the National Executive Committee, has been invited to meet with the former body to-morrow. North Carolina is the first State needing attention, and every energy will be bent to the work of carrying it for the Republican ticket in August.

ANOTHER TRIBUNE LIE NAILED.

Nothing more unqualifiedly and malignantly false could be printed than the editorial statement in to-day's Tribune to the effect that it is shown that Gen. BADEAU is or was the custodian of the missing records of the War Department. This covert falsehood is maintained by a failure to refer to the missing records as the records of the Buell Court-martial, to discover which was the whole object of the late investigation. In another column of the Tribune it is shown by its own report that these missing records have not been traced to any source, and that the regular reports of army operations are all on file. Gen. BADEAU obtained, by permission of the Secretary of War, a large number of copies of letters, together with some other documents belonging to the archives of army head-quarters. Some of these he took with him to London, and there is not a particle of evidence to show that they have been destroyed or cannot be returned. Yet upon this insignificant fact is attempted to be founded a charge that Gen. BADEAU is responsible for the missing records, meaning the Buell Court-martial records of the War Department.

OREGON SENATORSHIP.

Attorney-General WILLIAMS is now on his way from Oregon to this city. The latest news from there indicates that the election of a Republican Senator to succeed Mr. CORBETT is certain, as both Houses of the Legislature are Republican.

PICTURE OF THE YELLOWSTONE CANON.

Mr. MORAN'S picture of the Yellowstone Cañon, previous to its actual delivery and sale to the Government, which will be in July, as soon as the appropriation is subject to drafts, will be taken to Boston and placed on exhibition for a short time. When it is brought back here it will be placed opposite the north-east grand stair-case of the Capitol.

PATENT OFFICE GAZETTE.

Commissioner LEGGETT will soon begin the publication of the Official Patent Office Gazette. Copies can be obtained by any one for $5 per year, and besides eight copies will be sent to each Senator and Member of Congress for distribution to libraries.

THE CENSUS REPORT.

The Census Office today sent to the public printer the copy for the census compendium ordered by Congress just before adjournment. Twenty-five thousand are to be for the use of the Senate, 50,000 for use of the House, and 25,000 for the Secretary of the Interior.

HOMESTEADS TO SOLDIERS.

Instructions are now preparing at the General Land Office, for issue under the law recently passed granting homesteads to soldiers, and will be ready in a few days.

THE AMOUNTS APPROPRIATED.

The total appropriations passed at this session of Congress are completely given in the summarized table below, together with a comparison with last year, from which it will be seen that the total this year is nearly $3,000,000 less than last.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

BILLS THAT FAILED.

Among the bills which failed in Congress last night were the following:

Amendatory of the Passenger Steam-boat law.

Purchase of a site for a public building in Pittsburg, Penn.

Relative to the limit of steam pressure on towing and freight boats on the Mississippi River and its tributaries, namely, allowing 130 pounds instead of 160 pounds steam pressure.

For construction of a bridge across the Arkansas River, and to release to Indians the lands known as the bed of Beaver Lake.

NOMINATIONS THAT FAILED.

The following is the list of officers to which nominations were made but not confirmed during the late session of Congress:

Secretary of Legation—C. C. Gilmore, Calvert, Texas; Mrs. Mary B. Higley, Minerville, Penn.; Henry Cochran, Selma, Ala. Local Appraiser of Merchandise, James Cary, San Francisco. Minister Resident to Buenos Ayres, Col. W. Pegenille. Supervising Inspector-General of Steam-boats, Joseph Blunno, jr.

THE DEMOCRACY.

Several prominent Democrats, about twenty-five in number, representing Virginia, Texas, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Arkansas and New-York, held a secret meeting last evening at the Owen House and resolved that in the event of the Baltimore Convention indorsing the nominees of the Cincinnati Convention, that immediate steps be taken to call another convention for the purpose of nominating Democratic candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency. Their headquarters are at Indianapolis, with Col. GREY as their Chairman.

UNLAWFUL COTTON SEIZURES.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular, in accordance with a recently-passed law authorizing and directing him to pay to the lawful owners, or their legal representatives, the net proceeds, without interest, of the sales of all cotton actually paid into the Treasury which was seized after the 1st of July, 1865, by the agents of the Government unlawfully. The Secretary has established rules and regulations on the subject. The claimant, upon completing the proofs relied on to sustain his claim, is required to so notify the Secretary in writing, and after the expiration of the six months allowed by act of Congress for filing claims, the cases will be listed up and disposed of in the order in which such notifications have been received, unless further delay in the case is demanded by the public interests.

THE NEW-YORK POST-OFFICE WORKMEN.

JOHN C. GRAHAM, prominent in working men's organizations in New-York, accompanied Assistant-Secretary WILSON, Postal Judge RICHARDSON, Acting Secretary of the Treasury, for the purpose of making arrangements that the stipulation of the working men in the New-York Post-office for the extra two hours' work in the past, be paid directly to the men themselves, through the commission the Post may appoint. Judge RICHARDSON promised to give the matter his attention.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

The President wrote the letter of acceptance of the Philadelphia combination while at the Capitol, yesterday afternoon. After his return from the Executive Mansion, where he had received the President and Vice-President of the Convention. Sitting down at a table, he carefully read the letter which formally notified him of the nomination, and taking up a lead-pencil he commenced writing his reply on a half sheet of letter-paper. Senators Wilson and Logan, Solicitor-General Bristow, Secretary Rosecrans, Judge W. A. Richardson, Gen. Cowan, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Gen. Babcock, and Mr. Leahy, of the Executive Mansion, being present, engaged in conversation. The President wrote rapidly, and when he had finished the letter, read it aloud to those present, upon which they all expressed themselves highly pleased with it. A verbal alteration was suggested by one of the gentlemen present, which was accepted by the President, but with this exception the original draft of the letter bore no erasures. After Press copies had been made, the President gave the original draft to Solicitor-General BRISTOW, at the latter's request.

PENSION OF A DEFAULTER.

Mrs. COLLINS, wife of Dr. W. J. COLLINS, late Pension Agent in this city, called on the Second Controller today to learn whether her husband is still entitled to a pension, he being a defaulter to the Government. The Second Controller informed her that her husband's defalcation does not invalidate his claim to a pension, under a law of Congress passed in 1850, and that he would continue to receive his pension the same as other pensioners.

PORTER, permanent Chairman. Mr. PORTER made a strong speech in favor of the Cincinnati nominations. His speech was received with rapturous applause. Numerous resolutions were introduced, all urging support to GREELEY, whose name was received with an ovation of applause whenever mentioned. More than half the delegates in the present Convention came instructed to support the Cincinnati movement and urge no separate Democratic nomination at Baltimore. The feeling of the Convention was evidently nearly unanimous in this direction. A Committee on Resolutions was appointed, and the Convention adjourned until to-morrow forenoon.

IOWA.

Democratic State Convention—The Anybody-to-Beat-Grant Policy Recommended.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 11.—The Democratic State Convention, to select delegates to the Baltimore Convention, met here at 11 o'clock this morning, and after effecting temporary organization by appointing the usual committees, took a recess till 2 P. M. On reassembling, B. B. RICHARDS was elected permanent President, and JOHN GALLAGHER and WILLIAM WITTMER, Secretaries. The following resolutions were presented by the Committee on Resolutions, and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the principles enunciated by the late Cincinnati Convention, taken in connection with the letter of HORACE GREELEY accepting the nomination of Convention, constitute a platform on which all the elements of opposition to the present corrupt administration of the Federal Government can stand.

Resolved, That this Convention instruct the delegates to the Baltimore Convention to vote and act as a unit upon all questions.

The Convention then proceeded to select delegates. Chas. J. Mason, John P. Irish, M. M. Hall and John F. Duncomb were elected delegates at large, and Messrs. Giles Coles, Timothy Murphy, J. S. Root, James P. White, as alternates. The usual district delegates and alternates were elected. Judge CASEY moved the appointment of a committee to act with the Committee of Liberal Republicans to call a joint Convention for the nomination of a State ticket. Judge IRISH, Chairman of the State Central Committee, stated that such an arrangement had already been made, and that the call would be issued immediately after the Baltimore Convention.

The Convention then adjourned sine die.

INDIANA.

A Large Democratic Convention—Probable Action—Gen. W. Julian to be Candidate for Congressman at Large.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 11.—The Democratic Convention to-morrow promises to be the largest held here for many years. Ex-Senator HENDRICKS, who positively declined yesterday, it is understood has now, at the urgent solicitation of the Liberal Republicans and Democrats, consented to accept the nomination for Governor. The indications are that the Convention will indorse the Cincinnati Convention, and that none but Greeley Democrats will be elected to the Baltimore Convention, although there will be a strong opposition to it. In the event of HENDRICKS' nomination for Governor, KERR or DEPAW will be the nominee for Lieutenant-Governor. The Liberal Republicans had a meeting this morning, and selected GEORGE JULIAN as the candidate for Congress from the State at large.

Mr. Hendricks Consents to be a Candidate for Governor of Indiana—Pierce Delegates to Baltimore.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 11.—It is said Senator HENDRICKS was waited upon by various deputations of influential Democrats this morning, and was finally induced to accept the nomination for Governor. He will accordingly be nominated by acclamation. Hon. M. C. KERR will probably receive the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. It is expected the Convention will indorse the Cincinnati nominees by a large majority, although there will be very strong opposition to it by some leading and prominent Democrats. It is understood that the liberal Republicans, at a meeting held this morning, agreed to support the straight Democratic State ticket if the Convention will indorse the nomination of GREELEY and BROWN.

Support for the Tammany Candidate—Julian an Aspirant for Democratic Nomination.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 11.—The district delegations held caucuses to-night, and elected delegates to the Baltimore Convention. The delegates appointed are all favorable to GREELEY and BROWN. In the Terre Haute District caucus a motion to substitute VOORHEES in place of DOWLING, for delegate from the State at large to the Democratic Convention, was lost by a vote of 75 to 5.

Hon. Geo. W. JULIAN said in the Liberal Republican caucus today he would be glad if the Democrats would take him as one of their standard-bearers.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

The Senatorial Canvass—The Result Doubtful.

CONCORD, N. H., June 11.—The Senatorial contest continues with increasing spirit and excitement, all the influential Republicans in the State being more or less engaged in it. Mr. PATTERSON'S friends are confident that he will receive the nomination, and on the other hand ROLLINS' supporters are equally sure of his success, claiming nearly forty majority. Of the result, which will be determined by the nominating caucus on Tuesday next, nothing can be predicted with certainty.

FLORIDA.

Delegates to Baltimore—The Tammany Candidate the Favorite of the Conservatives.

TALLAHASSEE, June 11.—The Conservative State Central Committee, acting under a resolution adopted at the last State Convention, met here today and appointed regular delegates to the Baltimore Convention. The Committee resolved to hold a State Convention for the nomination of elector and a State ticket, in Jacksonville, at a time to be hereafter named. The majority of the delegates appointed are pledged to favor the acceptance of the Cincinnati nominees, but will abide the action of the Convention.

KANSAS.

The Border Counties All Enthusiastic for the Tammany Candidate.

TOPEKA, Kansas, June 11.—The Democratic State Convention met here today. Nearly every county was represented. Wilson SHANNON, Sr., presided, and in his opening speech said that should the Baltimore Convention make a nomination of some good man he would surely be sacrificed, and no advantage gained. He counselled the party to unite with the friends of reform, and the opponents of conservatism and plunder. MARK J. PARMOTT cordially invited the union of Democrats with the supporters of Mr. GREELEY.

GRANT AGAINST GREELEY.

Striking Letter of a Virginia Conservative.

Mr. JNO. H. GILMER, a well-known Democrat of Virginia, writes to the Richmond Whig, as follows:

RICHMOND, June 6, 1872.

To the Editor of the Richmond Whig:

Allow me, once for all, to reply through your paper to the numerous letters received, inquiring whether or not it is true, as reported in various papers, that it is my intention to advocate the re-election of Gen. GRANT, and if so, upon what grounds.

It is my intention to advocate the re-election of Gen. GRANT, and on the following grounds:

The Cincinnati Convention was, in my humble opinion, the mere development of personal antipathies, party disintegration, popular unrehearsings and casual combinations, with but one object in view, which was rather the results of personal prejudices, attributable to local antecedents, than it was the result of a calm and grave purpose of restoring the balances of the Constitution. Among its members there were no common ties, no well-defined sympathies, no ascertained or ascertainable policy, either as to State or Federal action. It met without authority, acted without discretion, and received without deliberation. Its sole purpose was to defeat the present incumbent, through the discordant and antagonising muddle of Whigs, Democrats, Republicans, Radicals and Communists. Indeed, it is even now impossible for the most experienced statesman to discover the position, anticipate the action, or define the policy of the Convention itself, or any one or more of its various members, except the common purpose of ousting the present incumbent. In it were blended all parties, without uniting any two. It sought to amalgamate all interests, without securing a proper guarantee for any one. It organized an unworkable regency, without harmonizing a single ingredient. From such an uncommon and unauthorized combination resulted the nomination of Mr. GREELEY.

It becomes the people of Virginia to consider well the claims which Mr. GREELEY has to cash his ticket for support. The nomination by such a Convention needs an indorsement to be derived from and sustained by the antecedent acts of the nominee.

Mr. GILMER, after reviewing Mr. GREELEY'S expressions in favor of secession, and his subsequent denial of them, and declaring that his bailing DAVIS was only fair since he "urged Mr. DAVIS and his Southern friends to secede," goes on to say:

One word as to the Baltimore Convention which is to assemble on the 9th July. The Conservative Press of Virginia are nearly a unit in urging the election of Mr. GREELEY—some few openly, with scathing rebuke, denounce the action of the Baltimore Convention. With the result of that Convention I have nothing to do, nor do I await its action with the slightest anxiety. I will say, however, if that Convention accepts the results of the Cincinnati Convention, it will, by the act, wipe out the record of their whole history, and place their party in the unenviable attitude of party vagrants—covertly seeking the protection of their bitterest enemy—and will forever bury the principles on which their great leaders, in the past, have so long and bravely maintained their creed, developed their policy and honored their party. What I the Democratic Party, as a party, to nominate HORACE GREELEY! To do so would for all time fix the sting of disability in their future action, and forever extinguish the light of truth on their past history, as it would cover the tombs of their great dead with the sad drapery of a nation's curse. But as to this, mournful as it may be, I am merely a passive looker-on. I may, however, be allowed to express the hope, with becoming modesty, that neither the manhood, the tried courage, the deep convictions, nor the cherished principles of the Democratic Party will be purchased, the consideration being a "mess of pottage" so distastefully served up, in the "flesh-pots of Egypt."

A few closing words as to the grounds on which I shall advocate the re-election of Gen. GRANT. In the immediate future, there are, in my opinion, severe trials, in Federal, State, interstate and international affairs, which will need in the Executive of the Federal Government a man endowed with high national courage, a stubborn will, iron nerves and recognized bravery; one who will be firmer as danger thickens around us, steadier as a true patriot gathers around us; one who obeys the laws, as regularly passed, because he recognizes the majesty of the people, and scorns to seek popularity by catering to the popular prejudices of the

THE ALABAMA CLAIMS.

Prof. Montague Bernard on the History and Position of the Case—The Difficulties of the Negotiations.

Prof. Montague Bernard delivered a lecture on the Alabama claims at the University Museum of Oxford, on May 28. After reviewing the history of the case, on the question of the indirect claims, and the responsibility of the Commissioners in respect of them, Mr. Bernard said:

"Direct losses are those directly and proximately occasioned by a given act or default; indirect losses to those which can only be traced to it indirectly or remotely through a chain or sequence of intermediate causes. By general principles common to all systems of jurisprudence, and founded on reason, the former are customarily taken into account in determining the measure of liability for any proved default; the latter are not taken into account. For at each fresh step, when you attempt to pursue the consequences of any human action, other causes enter in to assist or control the operation of the first, the circle soon widens indefinitely, and escapes the possibility of any just computation. There is at the same time no definite and ascertained line of demarcation between the two classes; but in practice there is rarely much difficulty in deciding what losses may properly be assigned to one, and what to the other. The Treaty of Washington is carefully framed to embrace only specific claims, such as had previously become known to both Governments under the name of the Alabama claims, for losses and damages caused by the acts of certain vessels, of which the Alabama was the typical instance; further, the losses must be such as can be fairly ascribed to some failure of duty on the part of England in respect of these vessels; and in making an award each case is to be taken separately. But, beyond this, the treaty does not define, by express words of limitation, the nature of the losses on account of which compensation may be awarded, should the arbitrators decide that any compensation is due. On this single point a difference of opinion has been developed between the Governments. The United States have introduced, among the claims which they have presented to the arbitrators, some to which England has excepted, as clearly beyond the fair scope of the reference. It is asked, very naturally, in this country, whether there was not in the British mind a sufficient knowledge and attention to the case that they were barred by express words; or, rather, it has been assumed that there must have been such a want of attention and foresight. It may, perhaps, be expected by some that these questions have been raised and discussed rather wantonly as to what occurred at the negotiation. Since the negotiators have been accused, with some acrimony, of having relied upon understandings not incorporated in the treaty or the protocols, of having neglected simple precautions and trusted to ambiguities of expression, and since I myself was a negotiator at Washington, I should not proceed at once to a denial of the correctness of the statement. But, I think you will agree with me that the last of these circumstances is, on the contrary, a reason why I should be silent on a question of great delicacy and importance, upon which the later negotiations between the two Governments have not yet been concluded. The true and proper responsibility for a treaty rests, the debtor would remark, not on the actual negotiator of it, but on those who gave orders he acts. He is responsible if he fails either to execute those orders to the best of his ability, or, being on the spot, to advise and inform his Government to the best of his ability of all that it ought to know. But his judgment may be overruled and his sanguine hopes disregarded; and it may become his duty to conclude and put his signature to arrangements which he wholly or partly disapproves. Yet, speaking for myself only, and in my own University, I desire to say that of the responsibility, whatever it be, for this part of the treaty, for every essential part of it, and for the treaty as a whole, I am perfectly willing to take my share."

DIFFICULT NEGOTIATIONS.

Prof. Bernard's remarks in relation to the difficulties of the negotiations ran thus:

"There are several things I would willingly say if there were time for them, and one of two I must say in reluctant to leave unsaid. There are observations which naturally occur to a person who, for the first time, has been called upon to take an active part in negotiation, and that negotiation carried on in and with the United States, and the most extensive and troublesome ever attempted with that country. The difficulties and delays of negotiation, such as they are, arise in great measure from the fact that the two principals—the parties really interested—neither are nor can be brought face to face with each other. The Envoy represents his Government; the Government, either directly or through an intermediate responsibility to a representative assembly, is responsible to the nation. The liberty thus delegated through successive bands is exercised under a series of restraints; and the tendency of those is to add strength to such impediments as punctiliousness, (which is national pride exhibiting itself in details,) the fear of conceding too much, the anxiety to make the best possible bargain, and the other motives which combine to promote the process vulgarly called haggling. The uncertainties of negotiation, and the restraints which popular institutions impose upon the negotiator, are nowhere so sensible as in the United States. There are in the United States, as we all know, special elements of uncertainty which exist nowhere else, flashing from the singular forces of party influence, and the increasing, honorly reference to party calculations, the peculiar distribution of power, under the Constitution, between the President and his Ministers and the Senate, the composition of the Senate itself, and further, if I may be permitted to say so, a certain personal vein of sensitiveness in some of those subjects which runs through the American character. You treat in America with persons who consider themselves less the representatives of the President or his Government than of the Senate—a body of more than seventy men, in which the Federal element is supreme, and the interests of the smallest State count for as much as those of the greatest. You treat with the Secretary of State, the Minister intrusted with the actual conduct of affairs, is not a member, to which he cannot personally explain his policy, and which he regards, therefore, not at all as a British Minister regards Parliament, but as a separate and external power, to be managed, convinced, and persuaded, when this becomes necessary, through the instrumentality of others. I have ventured to say that there is in the American character a certain vein of unreasonableness in matters of foreign policy which is easy to understand and account for. It springs from the intoxicating effect of rapid and prodigious growth and almost boundless prospects, coupled with the habitual sense of security and absolute independence which a nation may naturally feel when it has not merely an island but almost a continent to itself, separated from the rest of the world by 3,000 miles of ocean. Other countries think much of their past; the people of the United States think more of their future; and the ideas of increasing population, of immense space, of a magnitude in the future which shall be without example in the past, are constantly present to the American mind. Those causes, I think, coupled with, perhaps, appreciation of the merits of a good bargain have produced, in a people who in everything else are as sensible, reasonable and placable as any in the world, some tendency in these foreign relations to what the Greeks called by the expressive and convenient name of Hubris. It must be added to this, that the relation between the United States and England is such as exists between no other two countries in the world. England, I do not fear to say frankly, is the only country toward which the United States have any old traditions of hostility; the only country with which they can have any feelings of rivalry. She is also the only considerable Power, besides themselves, remaining on the American Continent. With understanding, and forgetting all this, there is in America, there is in England, the sense of a real unity, or something nearly approaching it, between the two nations—a unity of race, language, literature, social habits, and habits of political thought and action, as well as of general and substantial interests, which is independent of all that Governments can do on one side, and which Governments, on their side, and which no quarrels, no resentments, not even war itself, can destroy. It is common for Americans to say—'We want no mediators, no arbitrators, between ourselves and you; we are too nearly related to you and our prejudices with you are too close to suffer the intervention of strangers.' A mistaken inference, since the two nations are after all two, and must be content so to regard each other; and arbitration is nowhere more useful than in family quarrels. But the feeling exists, and can scarcely be accurately estimated where it does not. There is not the same sense of it, and its influence sensibly in nations west, not only the bearing of American toward England, but that of the American Government and people toward America. Yet this consciousness of unity—or of near relationship, if you will—is comparative, it is, indeed, more than comparable, especially in a people of vigorous temperament, with the strong English sense of justice with vehement resentments, where there has been a real or supposed injury. The resentment felt in the United States toward England at the close of the civil war was more general and much more deep and fervent than most of us, I am sure, of my own age, at least any of us, who knew how little we had really done to deserve it, were able to realise. There was amongst us the whole country an universal conviction that England had been both ungenerous and unjust toward America; and this conviction has not been entirely removed, though the poignancy of the feeling has been allayed by time. On the part of the Government this had been evinced by more than one act of what to us seemed its peevishness; and the Government followed what it knew, or believed, to be the sentiments of the people. If there be international wisdom in history, it is the recorded steadiness, it is that national resentments are long-lived, and that it is very imprudent to think lightly of them. The special mission of last year was a generous advance on our part, for the sake of a thorough reconciliation. Generosity is a word which it is easy to paint a sarcasm. It is out of place, we are often told, between nations. There is a kind of generosity, doubtless, which is always out of place. If for the sake of a reconciliation we had acknowledged a liability which we did not believe to exist, or had consented to pay money which we did not believe to be due, that would have been a generosity hardly consistent in my view with self-respect, and I for one should have subscribed with extreme reluctance any arrangement of that kind. But the generosity which shows itself not in giving away substantial rights, but in waiving punctilio, is being ready to make advances handsomely—generosity in the manner, perhaps, sometimes—qualities so valuable in the lives of individual men and women, are not out of place among nations, which, after all, are but men and women in multitudes. They produce lasting effects, they assist to bind up lasting friendships. They enable Governments to be firm without giving offense; to make concessions without incurring the reproach of weakness. The material interests which bind together great commercial nations, and make war ascribe and calamitous to them, are precious securities for peace. But there are other securities of a higher kind, and it is a practical error to disregard them. It is an error to act as if nations were always ruled either by merely material interests or by the sheer force of the more ignorant and less intelligent masses. The power of intelligence and knowledge may often be overlooked; but it levies eventually and by influence. If it is irrational, as per Gamaliel (Acts v. 38), to regard success as a mysterious overture, worked a seasable manner in American opinion. Some disappointment, perhaps, may have been at first felt when it was found that the British Government had not instructed its representatives to make concessions which it had never contemplated; but this soon wore away. The beneficial effect has continued, and it displays itself remarkably in the present temper of the American people. It is for the public advantage, I think, that the comprehensive settlement, made of many long-neglected questions and complex national interests, should be upheld. As for the reputation of the negotiators, which is a matter of comparatively small consequence—well, as to that, I suppose will take care of his acts, leaving his reputation to take care of itself; that is as much as most of us have to do; and I for one am very content that what he really deserves of praise or blame will be roughly measured out to him in the long run."

THE DERBY.

Story of the Race.

The racing reporter of the London Daily News on May 30, writes:

"Had Mr. Dombre met all who have an interest, great and small, in the Epsom Summer meeting, ordered a day specially for the occasion, they could not have selected one more in accordance with their requirements or more suitable for the celebration of the renowned carnival. So brilliant and temptive was the morning, that the road became the favorite, and many journeys made the journey that day; we have no doubt in saying that never were more vehicles to be seen bound Epsomward. As usual, both on the journey down and especially on the journey back, the road, as London was neared, was filled with crowds of race-goers, while on the lawns and in the paddocks of hundreds of trim villas passed, such scenes of joyous English life, and such bevies of charming English beauties, were to be seen as would make even Mr. THOMAS HUGHES, M. P., himself wish that the Derby would be celebrated once a week during the year if he could be spared from his Parliamentary duties to take a spin down to Surbiton and Kingston, or through Clapham Common and pass the Ewell Springs. The first incident of importance gathered on arrival at the scene of action was that Winslow had been scratched for the Derby at 9 o'clock, the colt having been incapacitated by a kick on the stifle from his stable companion, John Billington; but whether John Billington behaved in this way from envy or malice aforethought has not yet been ascertained. It was very hard luck both for DEWITT and FORDHAM, as Winslow was believed to be really a good horse, and in consequence of his thus being reserved, Lord Lorne mounted Fordham had no means in the first race. Racing began at 5 o'clock, and after Balgowhier had won the Epsom Town Plate, a general move was made so the paddock where the Derby cracks were being saddled. The "sacred" inclosure was literally crowded. Country gentlemen bestowed most critical attention on the shape and condition of the Derby colts. No particular change in the betting has to be chronicled, so that a mystifying mass of figures will not have to be served up for the bewilderment of the reader. Both in the paddock and in the preliminary canters Prince, Charlie and Oremorne especially pleased their admirers, while the great rising Brother to Verity also showed over the ground in rare style, and little fault could be found with either Drummond or Wenlock. Condor, who ran third for the French Derby, shewed tearing fighting action through being a bit hot-headed; but Almoner, who led the canters, displayed the perfection of action. Tom Chaloner was in his season of Resplendent, who is a model of a horse and his rider. Neither of Lord FALMOUTH'S pair cantered past the stand, but proceeded direct to the post. We wonder why there is no parade of the Derby horses as is the custom with the St. Leger field, and the competitors for the principal stakes at Ascot and Goodwood. Surely the Derby horses are fit to take part in such a spectacle, and surely also are the myriads who assemble on Epsom Downs worthy of such a spectacle being given them. It must be remembered by everybody nowadays, high and low, that the public are the people to please, and individual caprice against the requirements of the multitude, especially in connection with such national institutions as the Derby, should be esteemed to be of little value.

THE FIELD.

The Derby field was made up of twenty-three runners, and after scoring the pool, by the by, an excellent arena is afforded for the display of the talent of the starter, the lot got well under weigh at the first attempt. It was a tremendous finish between Oremorne and Brother to Flurry, and the latter finished so determinedly, that it was the general opinion that CHALONER would have landed him a winner had the distance been a few yards further. Such deductions are, however, often made under similar circumstances, and we have no wish to detract anything from Oremorne's success, the colt having taken up the running when fairly in the straight, and come along in the last three furlongs like a flash of lightning one to a holiday. MAIDMENT, nor in fact any other jockey, rode a better race, and must share an equal credit with the colt and the trainer. Mr. SAVILE is most popular on the turf, and the victory of Oremorne was consequently well received, cheers lead and long giving evidence of a public feeling. The result of the Derby excited further in the cap of Parmesan, that handsome, well-bred horse being the sire of both Oremorne and Fusconius. GILBERT, who for long has been associated with Mr. SAVILE, sent Oremorne to the post in the perfection of condition; and although the Derby winner is not a particularly taking horse to the eye, very few animals could be seen to greater advantage than he did on Tuesday, possessed of greater muscular development. Wenlock ran well to the distance, as also did Queen's Messenger, the latter unfortunately getting disappointed coming round Tattenham corner, and Drummond laid well up with the leading division the greater part of the way. Prince Charlie's defeat was unmistakable, and he never was nearer than sixth in any part of the race. Marshal Bassus ran a very bad horse indeed, and MARTIN had to ride him before half a mile had been covered. Statesman ran very fast for a long way, while Lobsterman also made a show of a struggle a quarter of a mile from home. Directly after the Derby, the commencement of the return journey was made by the majority of the assemblage, and the road soon became thronged with vehicles hurrying back to town. Among the visitors on the Downs were the Atalanta crew."

Illness of Gen. Wetmore.

Gen. P. M. WETMORE, of Great Neck, Long Island, has been confined to his house for the past ten days with severe illness. Hopes are entertained that he will be able to be out in the course of a week.

A Lawyer on Trial for Forgery.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder HACKETT, ALEXANDER H. REAVEY, a lawyer, and GEO. H. THOMAS were indicted for forgery in the first degree on the charge of Mrs. ELIZABETH GAYLER. It appears from the evidence that THOMAS was an adopted son of Mrs. GAYLER and her husband. Some time since Mr. HUNT brought her a mechanic lien on some property she possessed, and by advice of THOMAS she consulted REAVEY, who gave her some papers to sign. Copies were promised to be returned to her, but they were not, and having spoken to THOMAS frequently on the subject, he finally told her that the papers she signed were an assignment of her property to him. She never heard of any such consignment until then, and had the defendants arrested on the present charge. The case has not yet terminated.

The Jersey City Frauds—Petition for the Pardon of Wm. M. Tweed.

Petitions are being circulated in Jersey City praying the Court of Pardons to release WM. M. TWEED, who is under sentence to State Prison for conspiracy. One of these, printed and circulated among the friends of Mr. TWEED, after reciting the charges on which he was convicted, and the defenses offered, states that inasmuch as the Court had intimated that Mr. GARRETT VERMILYE, jointly convicted with TWEED, would be only punished by the infliction of a fine, the ends of justice would be fully served by the remission of a similar punishment on the latter, without imprisonment. The names of many prominent citizens, such as GRISCOM CLEVELAND, Judge BRINCKERHOFF and STEPHEN CRANE, are appended to the document. At the meeting of the Board of Public Works yesterday, Mr. TWEED'S resignation, which had been prepared a week ago, was presented. It was said that the City Treasurer had not received the $14,900 made by VERMILYE and TWEED out of the property sale, but Mr. VERMILYE'S check for that amount had been certified at the bank.

Quotations as in our list.

COTTON—Has been in limited request for early deliveries, and prices have ruled steady. Sales for the week, including 228 bales to shippers, 201 bales to spinners, and 17 bales on speculation. For forward delivery a fairly active movement has been reported, but prices have been checked off ½c. Sales for the week have reached of 35,000 bales (2,000 bales last evening, and 5,450 bales to-day) bale of Low Middling, including last evening, for July, 400 bales at 25¾c.@25¾c.; August, 400 bales at 25¾c.@25¾c.; September, 200 bales at 25¾c.@25¾c.; October, 1,800 bales at 25¾c.@25¾c.; November, 1,050 bales at 24¾c.@24¾c.; December, 1,000 bales at 24¾c. Exchanges—Are paid to exchange 100 bales June, short notice, for 100 bales July. The average quotations of yesterday's forward deliveries as officially reported upon the bulletin were: For June, 25.07c.; July, 25.36c.; August, 25.46c.; September, 24.66c.; October, 24.25c.; November, 23.95c.; December, 23.91c. Exchanges—Are paid to exchange 100 bales June, short notice, for 100 bales July. The receipts at the ports today were 273 bales, including 198 bales per rail, 75 bales from Charleston. The Visible Supply statement of the shipments for the week 7,140 bales, and thus far this week 4,358 bales, against 4,867 bales same time the preceding week. The receipts at all the shipping ports since Sept. 1 have been 3,651,614 bales, against 3,574,124 bales last year. The following official quotations are based on Cotton running in quality not more than half a grade above or below the grade quoted:

EGGS—The demand has been confined to the supply at urgent wants at the current rates, which show rather less firmness for other than strictly prime marks of fresh receipt. We quote from 12c.@13c. for Western in bbls. and boxes. Choice to very choice Western in bbls. and boxes have been in fresh lots of Western at 14c.@15c., and of State at from 16c.@17c.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The demand for State and Western Flour has been comparatively limited, and within our previous range. The principal holders are confident in their views, and not disposed to yield from asking rates for desirable grades. City Mills extras have been most sought after at the ruling figures. Sales have been made since our last of 8,700 bbls., all told, including inferior to very choice superfine State and Western at $4 65@$5 25; very inferior to choice Extra State at $5 30@$6 50; very good to fancy at $7 20@$8; poor to very good shipping Extra Western at $5 75@$7 20; poor to good shipping brands round-hoop Ohio at $7 20@$7 50, &c. We quote:

No. 2 Flour, ₱ bbl.	$4 00@$4 50
Sour Flour	5 00@ 6 50
Superfine State and Western	5 05@ 5 35
Extra State	5 30@ 6 50
Extra State, shipping brands	6 30@ 7 50
Extra Genesee	6 10@10 75
Extra Ohio, round-hoop shipping brands	7 20@ 7 50
Extra Western, shipping brands	6 75@ 7 50
Extra Ohio, trade and family brands	7 30@10 50
Extra Western, trade and family brands	7 30@10 50
Extra St. Louis, ordinary and fancy	5 75@10 75

Southern Flour has been quiet, but firm. Sales have been reported since our last of 350 bbls., at $5 00@$6 50 for Common to Fair, and $6 60@$7 25 for Fancy and Extra. Rye Flour is very quiet and unchanged; sales of 200 bbls. Fine at $4 75@$5 00. Corn Meal is in fair request, and prices have been steady; sales 1,000 bbls. Yellow at $3 25@$3 30 for Jersey, and $3 90@$4 for Brandywine; sales 300 bbls. Western at $3 25@$3 30, and 200 bbls. Oakland, Md., at $3 50@$3 60, on private terms. Market steady, on the basis of $3 70@$3 75.

GRAIN—Spring Wheat has been in better request, mainly for export, though partly for milling and to speculative account, and prices have been about ½c.@2c. a bushel dearer, on restricted offerings of prime samples. In Winter Wheat the dealings have been limited, but prices have shown more confidence, and have not varied since our last of 150,000 bushels at $1 70@$1 75 for amber to prime No. 2 Milwaukee spring, afloat; chiefly at $1 72 for prime; $1 73 for No. 2 Chicago spring; $1 77 for Amber Iowa spring; $1 77 for Amber Michigan spring; $1 80 for Mixed No. 2 and 3 Spring, afloat; $1 80@$2 02½ for Red and Amber Western and $2 02½@$2 05 for White Genesee. In small lots the bulk of the business was done at outside figures. There has been a brisk inquiry noted for Corn, mainly for shipment though, in part, for the regular home trade, and offerings, consisting coarsely of new Western mixed, have been pressed for sale, while prime quoted firm for desirable samples, which have been closed with less urgency, notwithstanding the further 15cent. arrivals. Sales have been reported since our last of 250,000 bushels, including 100,000 bushels new Western mixed, in part to arrive, at 56½c. for ordinary to choice steamer grades of new mixed Western, chiefly at 56c.@56½c., and closing at 56c.@56½c. for fair to very good steamer grades, and 57c.@57½c. for fair to very good choice sailing grades; 57½c. for No. 2 Mixed, 57½c. for prime to choice; 70c.@72c. for old Yellow Western; 70c.@71c. for fair to low old Yellow Western; 72c.@73c. for unmarked old Western; and 73c.@74c. for choice old Western. Oats have been dull at unaltered prices.

Barley has been quiet and nominally unchanged. Barley malt has been in moderate request within our previous range; sales, 7,000 bushels Canada, 50 arrive, at $1 27½.....Oats have been moderately sought after, opening less firmly, but closing with more steadiness, at 1c. below the extreme rates of last week. Sales have been reported since our last of 220,000 bushels at 38c. for Mixed Western afloat; 39½c. for car-lots of do.; 40½c. for full loads, in store; 55c.@57c. for fair to prime White Western, and the inside for do. in store.

HAY—Has been in good supply and quite active demand at $1 02½@$1 40 for shipping; $1 45@$1 70 for local use; $1 70@$1 90 for Clover Hay; $1 40@$1 60 for straw; inactive at from 80c.@$1 30 for the range of qualities. Shucks and Long Rye, $1 10@$1 20.

PROVISIONS—Pork has been dull, with steadiness in the absence of sales. Beef is quiet and unchanged. Cut Meats—Scotch Pig from has been offered more freely and quoted easier in price, on a very moderate demand; sales 300 tons Cumberland, to be delivered, at 8½c. Bacon has been in good request and quoted quite firm. Sales reported of 2,000 tons at 8½c. for Long Clear, and 9c. for Short Clear; 9½c. for Rough Clear, and 10c. for Short Clear, all to arrive. Hams have been quite firm. Sales of 200 tons Cumberland cut, to arrive, at 12c. Lard has been in fair request, and prices have been steady; sales of 500 tierces at 9½c. for Steam Refined, and 9¾c. for Long Clear.....Beef has been quite firm. Sales of 500 bbls. Extra Mess, 50 bbls. Extra Plate, and 50 bbls. Packet, at $10 50 for Mess, and $11 50 for Plate. Prime Mess is nominal at from $8 50@$9 00 for Country, and $9 50@$10 for City. Beef Hams have been reported at $19 50@$20 for Western, and $20@$21 for City. Prime to choice makes of Butter have been moderately inquired for at about steady rates; other qualities dull and heavy.....Cheese has been in less demand and weaker, and irregular in price. We quote: Butter will be sharp and firm.

PETROLEUM—Crude has been inactive, and quoted rather weak at 8½c. in bulk, and 17½c.@17¾c. in shipping order; sales 200 bbls. in bulk, at 17¾c. Naphtha quite dull and nominal at 17½c.@18c. Refined is in moderate supply and quiet, but steady, and quite generally sought after on the basis of 24c.@24½c. here, and 23½c. at Philadelphia, for early delivery; sales here, 1,000 bbls. early July delivery, at 24½c., and 24 Philadelphia, 1,500 bbls. last half of July delivery, at 24c.....Refined in cases inactive, at 32c.@32½c.

PROVISIONS—Pork has been offered sparingly and quoted firm, but has been very moderately sought after for early delivery; sales have been reported since our last of 325 bbls., in lots, at $13 50@$13 62½ for New Western Mess; $12 75 for Old Mess; $13 75 for Extra Prime; and $13 87½ for Prime Mess. Beef is quiet and unchanged; sales of 200 bbls. in lots at $10 75 for Extra Prime to Fancy Pork. Prime mess is nominal. Beef Hams are quiet and unchanged. Cut Meats have been in moderate request, and prices are firm. Sales of 200 bbls. Pickled Bellies, ₱ lb.

The New-York Times.

DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—uncompromising warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent warfare upon the Tammany Democrats has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledges given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. In pursuit of these ends it has become, and is determined, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, recognizing the claims of American industry in adjusting the sources of revenue; and it will advocate with untiring energy every cause which tends to further the welfare of the people.

CAMPAIGN EDITION.

During the ensuing Presidential Canvass we shall publish a SPECIAL WEEKLY EDITION for the convenience of those who desire the latest and most trustworthy political intelligence.

The CAMPAIGN EDITION of the NEW-YORK TIMES will be furnished to mail subscribers, for six months, for the sum of FIFTY CENTS. All copies sent to the same Post-office to be mailed to one address.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-weekly editions; and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings at the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

The SEMI-WEEKLY and WEEKLY mailed one year to clergymen at the lowest rates.

These prices are invariable. Remit in drafts on New-York or Post-office Money Orders if possible, and where neither of these can be procured send the money in a registered letter.

Terms, cash in advance.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES,
New-York City.

We shall publish the next issue of the WEEKLY TIMES as a triple sheet, in order to give our readers a full and accurate report of the National Republican Convention, held in Philadelphia. Persons desiring extra copies are requested to send in their orders early, as the edition will necessarily be large. Single copies may be had at the counter; price, in wrappers, five cents each.

☞ Throughout the Presidential canvass, we shall publish fuller reports of meetings and conventions in each State than any other New-York journal. Very full dispatches will be forwarded by telegraph, supplemented by careful letters. Our desire is to place before the public the latest and most trustworthy information, and we have made ample arrangements for that purpose.

Ex-Senator HENDRICKS has accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor in Indiana. The section of the "Liberal" Republicans that is satisfied with the Cincinnati nominations, has agreed to support the straight Democratic ticket in the State should the Convention, to be held today, instruct its delegates to Baltimore in favor of GREELEY and BROWN. Thus does the "Reform" Convention bring forth such fruits of party huckstering and unprincipled alliances as cast in the shade the worst of the political evils which it professed itself to be able to cure.

A strong letter from a Virginia Democrat, giving his reasons for supporting GRANT against GREELEY, will be found in another column. Its author is Mr. JNO. H. GILMER, of Richmond, and his dissection of the Cincinnati Convention shows him to be a skillful interpreter of political events. We commend his judgment of Gen. GRANT to all candid Southern readers.

The system of public bids for the award of City stocks is one of the best features of the honest and business-like administration of Controller GREEN. Such proposals as were opened yesterday, and their details given to the public, are so much a matter of course in transactions of this kind, that it is necessary to recall the fact that they represent a very great reform in the administration of our local finances. The time has passed when NATHANIEL SANDS could net $75,000 out of the negotiation of City bonds, and AUGUST BELMONT could have millions allotted to him without the public having the slightest idea of the price he paid for them. So long as Mr. GREEN remains in the Controller's office, that time will certainly not return.

From the Democratic State Convention of Delaware comes the demand for a straight party nomination at Baltimore, and from Washington comes the news of steps being taken to organize for a bolting convention should the majority of the delegates at Baltimore place GREELEY and BROWN at the head of their ticket. The head-quarters of this new organization will be at Indianapolis, with Col. GREY as Chairman. The Cincinnati nominations seem decidedly destined to cause a much greater disturbance in the ranks of the Democracy than they are likely to do in those of the Republicans.

Which is the Party of Peace and Unity?

There is one pretence put forward by the Greeley party which is urged with such persistency, and in such a variety of forms, that it is best to give it a thorough examination. It is that the election of Mr. GREELEY will insure the complete restoration of good feeling in the South, and will signalize the perfect establishment of the results of the war. Various arguments are used to strengthen this position. One is that Mr. GREELEY has, from an early day, been in favor of universal amnesty. This, it is declared, has won for him a warm place in Southern hearts, and his election will transfer the affection for him to the National Government. This reasoning ignores an obvious fact, that Mr. GREELEY has neutralized the effect of his advocacy of amnesty by his violent support of the Kuklux law, the Congressional Election law, and of every "repressive measure" which his paper now condemns. Whatever may be the merits of these measures, it is plain that Mr. GREELEY's connection with them deprives him of the right of appealing to the Southerners on the ground that he is "their only friend."

In the next place, it is urged that Mr. GREELEY's signature to the bail-bond of JEFFERSON DAVIS has made him many friends in the South, who, if he is elected, will be equally friends of the nation. But it is forgotten that Mr. GREELEY's bailing of DAVIS was a mere political investment, which he has since acknowledged was meant, not for a kindness to DAVIS, but to open his own way to Southern gratitude. Men who can be fooled by confessed trickery of this kind are not made of the stern stuff of the obstinate rebels. They would be the last men to abandon any deeply-rooted animosity at the invitation of a politician who owns that his kindnesses are premeditated political devices.

Finally, it is claimed that if the Democrats indorse Mr. GREELEY, his election would be tantamount to a mutual wiping out of past scores, and a declaration of common fidelity to the national unity. The strength of this argument is destroyed the moment we consider the motives that suggest this boasted combination. There is no real unity of feeling at the base of the agreement; there is simply an apparent temporary similarity of selfish interests. The men who have engineered the Greeley movement have not changed their real convictions, so far as they had any. They have not given, and cannot give, any guarantee that, at the dictate of political expediency, they would not resort to every measure opposed by the Democrats with the same eagerness and recklessness they have hitherto shown in their support. They have simply consented to abandon their previous position from motives of greed, and it is absurd to argue that from this starting point any reconciliation of differences of opinion or feeling can be produced. On the other hand, the Democrats would enter into the combination, if they made it at all, only from motives of equally obvious interest. They would accept Mr. GREELEY only because they could not hope to get a man of their own, and for precisely the same reasons that would make them take a straight Democrat, if they thought they could elect one. It would be on their part no real surrender of those tenets which the people of this country have condemned, no sign of the real eradication of those tendencies which the people regard with such apprehension. They would still be the tacit sympathizers with rebellion, the apologists for the Kuklux, the haters of the freedmen, and the covert enemies of the national credit; and the worst feature of the case would be, that Mr. GREELEY's personal peculiarities are such, that his indorsement involves no surrender of anything by the Democrats, since there is no reason to suppose that they could not bend him to their will, as he has been previously bent by them and others so many times.

When we come to examine this pretension of the Greeley faction, then, we discover that it is based on an incorrect representation of the facts. But even if it were not, it proceeds on a false theory. The American people do not want any pacification of the South, gained by ignoring the past on the one side, and by a merely nominal acceptance of the present on the other. They know that such a reconciliation would be illusory, and would be more dangerous than the confessed existence of ill-feeling. What is wanted is a perfect establishment of the principles the war was waged for. This can only be secured by the Republican Party. That Party originated those principles. It sustained them during all the trials of the war. It has never compromised, betrayed, or threatened them. On the other hand, it has promptly and cordially acknowledged whatever the South has done indicating a real acceptance of them. From its hands, amnesty has gone to the South in liberal measure. The party represents with perfect equity, and they granted it. He was in favor of the reduction of the revenue duties, and they reduced it. We do not believe the people will lay these things up against either Congress or the President, and the Tribune ought to have learned that no amount of impudent misstatement will weigh against well-known facts.

A Lesson of the Strikes.

It would be a matter of interest to inquire, what proportion of the thousands forming that long column of "strikers" that filed our streets on Monday were thoroughly American. According to our observation, the thorough-bred American artisan is not prone to strike. He looks sharply enough after his own interests, and likes to get the full price of his labor, just as after he is paid he likes to get the full worth of his dollar. But generally he is not inclined to attain his object by striking. He seeks his end by other means, appealing to the reason, the sense of justice, and even the interests of his employer. He knows that he may generally rely upon these to secure for him a fair remuneration for his labor; and he is intelligent enough, and generally well informed enough, to appreciate rightly his employer's position as well as his own.

The fact is that in this country the artisan is better paid than in any other country in the world, and has not only political rights, but a political influence which he has no where else. The latter he has because of the nature of our political institutions. He is a citizen of a commonwealth; a member of a society in which there are no defined classes, and in which no condition of life has any legally secured privilege. His high wages, are the consequence, directly or indirectly, not of any peculiarity of form or of principle in our Government, but because of the material conditions of life here; and chiefly, the existence of vast tracts of unoccupied land at the West, enough of which to provide present comfort and future competence, possibly future wealth, may be obtained by any man who will go and take it. So long as this condition of things exists, no considerable body of men will remain in the more thickly settled parts of the country, working for other men at wages inadequate to provide the comforts of life according to the modern standard.

Emigration is always taking westward, either to till the soil, or to supply the various needs of the tillers, enough men to relieve the labor market of the East of any great and long-continued superfluity of supply. An artisan who is master of his trade, and who has average intelligence and information, knows that in this country he is sure—in the long run at least—of employment at fairly remunerative wages. He knows, too, that one of the surest ways, if not the only sure way, to bring about a lack of such employment, is by demanding and insisting upon such a high rate of payment that employers in his trade will cease to find it a profitable investment of their money and their labor, and will bring their business to a close, and look about for other ways of using their capital. He knows that if, by continued strikes for higher wages, or for shorter time at the same wages, which amounts to the same thing, he helps to make houses or piano-fortes cost more than people in general who need them can afford to pay for them, they will have to content themselves with smaller and less expensive houses, and fewer or no piano-fortes, and that therefore he diminishes—perhaps extinguishes—his chance of steady employment at good pay.

This view of the case is very commonly taken by the intelligent and thoroughbred American artisan, who is, therefore, generally not inclined, of his own motion, to strike work for higher wages. Such, at least, appears to be the case with the soberer and steadier men among them; those who are the best workmen and the best citizens. A recent writer, recounting his observation of a particular case, says that he had the opportunity of observing four men, house-carpenters, at work day by day. Two were middle-aged, intelligent, thoroughbred American mechanics. They were prompt and steady at their work, and took a pride in doing it well and overcoming any difficulties that presented themselves. They belonged to no union, and spoke of unions with no very high respect. The other two, younger men, belonged to a union. They came late and went early; they slighted their work, scorned it, took no pride in doing it well, went out four or five times in the course of their short day to the corner grocery, and seemed to know more and care more about their own crude views of political economy than they did about their business.

This story accords entirely with the results of all careful observation. Among the skilled artisans the best workmen are not generally ready to take part in a strike. Good, thorough, intelligent work has diminished almost exactly in proportion to the frequency and the success of strikes, and also in proportion to the introduction of foreign born and bred workmen into the mechanical trades. These men, as a general rule, act under the influence of two notions acquired in Europe—one, that capital, which in this country is almost invariably acquired by labor, is the enemy of labor, and must be put under compulsion to treat labor fairly; the other, that this being a free country, every man in it, particularly every man who comes to it, has a right to everything he wants, quite irrespective of any other consideration whatever. There is no greater mistake than to suppose that the unreasonable demands, the aggressive tone, the agrarian notions, the violent disregard of law which mark the speech and the action of certain sorts of men who are in this country, and who are often citizens of it, are of American origin. They have made their appearance here only since the great emigration, and are as really foreign to genuine American life as any other imported article. How they shall be checked, corrected, and justly attempered to that life is one of the gravest political problems before us, perhaps the gravest.

MINOR TOPICS.

"The Times prints at the head of its editorial columns this assertion: 'Gen. GRANT never has been beaten, and he never will be,' signed, HORACE GREELEY. The Tribune denies that Mr. GREELEY ever said this, and challenges the Times to prove it or withdraw the assertion."

The above is from the Evening Post. It is mistaken in supposing that the Tribune ventures to deny that Mr. GREELEY used the expressions quoted. The paragraph from Mr. GREELEY's speech we have copied word for word, and it is as follows:

"We are led by Him who first taught our armies to conquer in the West, and subsequently in the East also. Richmond would not come to us until we sent GRANT after it, and then it had to come. (Cheers.) He does never yet been defeated, and never will be. He will be as great and successful on the field of politics as on that of arms."

There seems to be some doubt as to who is President of the National Bureau of Migration. The last that we heard of this institution was when Mr. GREELEY published an affecting appeal to intending colonists, male and female, to come and deposit their money in the Bowling-green Savings Bank, then on the sheer verge of bankruptcy. That the great army of intending emigrants did not straightway make haste to deposit sums from ten cents upward in HARK SMITH's bank, was fortunate for them, though not very strongly indicative of the confidence they reposed in Mr. GREELEY. The editor of the Tribune resented this slur upon the soundness of his judgment by resigning the Presidency of the Bureau, but now comes an agent to Southern lands at No. 39 Park-row, who declares that Mr. GREELEY is again President of the great colonizing enterprise. Have the emigrants soothed the injured vanity of Mr. GREELEY by placing their dimes in some other Ring bank, or has the Tammany candidate for the Presidency resolved to stick to the National Bureau, so that after November next he may head a westward-going colony, composed of Gen. COCHRANE, WALDO HUTCHINS, THEODORE TILTON, and others, seeking refuge from the inextinguishable laughter which attends them around their former haunts?

A proposition to place a street lamp in front of a savings bank was yesterday discussed and defeated in the Board of Aldermen. Why the City should be expected to advertise savings banks by presenting them with gratuitous street lamps is not clear. With equal justice it might be required to light the waytarer's steps to the office of a petroleum company, or the shop of a cigar-dealer. There is only one view in which the presentation of lamps to savings banks can be justified. There are a number of these institutions which, like the Market and the Bowling-green Banks, are merely traps to catch the pennies of the poor. Before the doors of these establishments it might be worth while to plant the red lamp of danger. The Companies, however, might very possibly object to such a method of advertising their character.

The Atalanta Boat-club was badly beaten. Various causes contributed to swell the measure of their defeat, but the one cause which alone was sufficient to insure their losing the race, was the vicious practice of too rapid rowing common to all American crews. The superiority of a comparatively slow over an excessively rapid stroke was shown some six or eight successive years in the victories of Oxford over Cambridge. Latterly, the Cambridge crew has abandoned its former style of rowing, and has consequently beaten its rival. The Harvard crew attempted to beat Oxford by rowing the discarded Cambridge stroke, and learned, it is to be hoped, the folly of their mistake. And now come the Atalantas, and persist in rowing thirty-eight and forty strokes to the minute, thereby offering themselves an easy sacrifice to an equally good crew, rowing thirty-four or thirty-six strokes. If the recent race teaches our rowers to reform their style, its result will not have been without its uses.

HAGGERTY, the Tammany rough, indicted for stealing the vouchers for the fraudulent Ring warrants, is still in possession of a suite of elegantly-furnished rooms in the new Court-house. A story was reported lately about HAGGERTY having been violently ejected by some person claiming to be the new janitor. This seems to have had no foundation in fact. Will Chamberlain PALMER, who, some time ago, professed a virtuous desire to displace the appointee of BRADLEY, tell us why this disreputable tool of an unscrupulous Ring is allowed to virtually command all the accesses to every record which is left of the guilt of the officials who plundered the City? It seems as if HAGGERTY knew too much to be safely disturbed by any of the Tammany gang or their appointees. The fact will help the people to comprehend some of the minor outrages upon law and decency which GREELEY, HOFFMAN & Co. have rendered possible.

A theorist might easily deduce a proof of the growing conservatism of the commercial classes in this country, from the fact that so many places of business bear signs which mention the names of earlier firms. Thus it is quite common to find signs which set forth that "John Smith," in very small letters, is the successor of "John Jones," whose name occupies the greater part of the sign. In some instances, this plan is carried to a still further extent, and a close inspection of the sign-board shows that "James Brown" is the successor of Smith, the successor of Jones. Then, again, we meet with signs which announce the existence of such firms as "Thompson's Nephews," or "Robinson's Sons," thereby proving the desire on the part of the heirs of the elder Thompson and Robinson to keep the memory of those dead or retired merchants fresh in the public mind. All of which the theorist before mentioned might turn to good account in demonstrating the conservative tendencies of trade. The only trouble with this sort of signs is that there is no limit to the extent to which the plan on which they are made can be carried. Two hundred years from now, the sign over the store of "Thompson's Nephews" will resemble in length and appearance a genealogical chapter from the Old Testament.

While Superintendent THORNE is getting his new street-cleaning bureau in practical operation, he might profitably employ whatever leisure time he may have in devising some improvement upon the Brown method of removing the garbage and ashes. It was apparently a chief object of that happily obsolete contractor to send his carts through the streets for the collection of this matter, at such hours as to make the operation offensive and annoying to the greatest number of people. It never seems to have occurred to him that this refuse might be carried off during the night or early morning, when few persons are abroad; and fearing that a possibility so manifest may not suggest itself to Mr. THORNE, he ranged him that to the unofficial mind it is very palpable. We are disposed to give the new street-cleaners every opportunity to do better than their predecessors before finding fault, and make this notice merely for the purpose of indicating to them a way in which to earn the thanks of the public.

Prince BISMARCK, when he left Berlin three weeks ago, gave out that he did not contemplate returning to town till the late Autumn. Among the various plots which he is reported to be hatching, by those who make themselves responsible for the evolutions of his teeming brain, is one for a new German State Church. While the English establishment is sharpening its weapons and drilling for defense, the Prussian Wolsey is supposed to be thinking that a repetition of HENRY VIII.'s famous measure might be advantageously reproduced in North Germany.

Legs are rarely recognized by men in authority. Even FREDERICK the Great, who held that the legs of his soldiers were their most important possessions, is not known to have been particularly careful of them. Our Post-office has, however, issued an appeal in behalf of the legs of its messengers, and with a view to relieving them of some of their labors, urges that letter-boxes be placed at every door, so that the messengers charged with the delivery of letters need no longer climb interminable stairs. The postman fully coincides with DANTE as to the misery of climbing upstairs, and there must be a strong temptation on his part to deliver in the convenient gutter letters directed to inhabitants of fourth floors; though, to his credit it should be added, that it is not known that he ever yields to this temptation. He certainly ought to be spared labor that is unnecessary, as well as unwholesome, and this object can be attained by placing letter-boxes before every door. What though the wretched small boy contributes surreptitious cigar-stumps and pebbles to the same receptacle—neither box nor letters will sustain much injury, while a sure saving of postmen's legs will be achieved.

ENGLISH OPERA AT BRYANT'S.

A very numerous audience attended the performance of "Il Trovatore" at Bryant's Opera-house, on Monday. The representation does not call for an elaborate review, but it can be said with justice that Mrs. SHOUTEN's personation of Azucena was an exceedingly creditable effort, and that Miss HOWSON's Leonora placed in a strong light that lady's gifts and talent as a songstress. Both artists produced a most favorable impression, and Mrs. SHOUTEN's highly dramatic singing in the third act, resulted in a subsequent summons to appear before the curtain. Mr. BROOKHOUSE BOWLER was Manrico, and Mr. BRAYTON Conte di Luna. VERDI's work was repeated last night. This evening "Martha" will be done.

MISS NILSSON IN LONDON.

Miss NILSSON'S reappearance at the Drury-lane Theatre is thus referred to in the London Daily News of May 20:

"The brilliant audience which filled Drury-land Theatre last night must have been reminded of one memorable evening in the season of 1867, when a young Swedish artist, who had acquired some reputation in Paris, appeared for the first time at the 'Old House in the Haymarket.' Comparatively little was then known of CHRISTINE NILSSON, and scarcely more interest was felt in her debut than in that of many candidates for favors destined never to be won. Mlle. NILSSON, in fact, was on her trial, and the verdict of warm and unanimous approval so quickly granted, owed nothing to antecedent circumstances. Between her debut in 1867 and her reappearance last night, after nearly two years' absence in America, what a contrast existed! The part played on both occasions—Violetta in 'La Traviata'—was the same; but the second Violetta stepped upon the stage to receive a thunderous welcome, and to achieve a foreknown triumph. Reference has been made to Mlle. NILSSON's welcome, and there is every reason to believe that, had the fascinating artist shown a material falling-off from previous excellence, our generous British public—than which no public is more faithful—would have treated her as not less a heroine. But the 'Libiamo' at once proved that no such falling off was there, while the scena with which the first act closes enabled the prima donna to re-establish herself even in the estimation of those who may till then have doubted. Not that change was wholly absent. The artist's voice, for example, appeared to have lost somewhat of the brightness as well as of the compass which at first distinguished its higher register, and plainly suggested the effects of hard work. But, in every other respect, change seemed to be for the better. The middle and lower notes of Mlle. NILSSON's voice have undoubtedly gained in volume and sympathetic quality; while a delicious mezza voce is still hers in perfection. As an actress unless than as an singer was improvement evident. Signs of nervousness or restraint, which once may have been apparent in Mlle. NILSSON's stage demeanor have entirely vanished, and no artist from the fiery South could now present a more passionate Violetta than this native of the frigid North. The first act sufficed to prove what we have said, and the curtain fell after Sempre libera, upon a success rare indeed, if estimated by the demonstrations that attended it. Three times was Mlle. NILSSON summoned before the curtain amid shouts of applause and a rain of bouquets, a like scene taking place at the close of each act, till it appeared as though the voices of the shouters were silent only through hoarseness, and the storm of flowers ceased only through the emptiness of the neighboring market. It would serve little purpose to follow Mlle. NILSSON through an opera so familiar as 'La Traviata.' Enough that she made every point as it came, which, unfailing, was the most effective in the distressful climax. The death of Violetta could not have been represented with greater power, or produced a deeper impression."

UNION-SQUARE THEATRE.

"Fortunio," with its songs and dances, and gorgeous scenes and transformation tableaux, continues to attract large audiences to this theatre. Monday evening, during the second act, a novel feature was introduced in the shape of Prof. FABER's "Talking-machine." The apparatus, though it can speak far more distinctly and correctly than many human machines we have heard, and can even sing a little has as yet no part assigned to it in the play. Monday night, however, its capabilities were fully put to the test, and though, as we know from a personal examination, it consists of nothing more than a few wires, strings, keys, levers and India-rubber tubes, it is, nevertheless, capable of enunciating clearly all the sounds produced by the human voice, all the letters of the alphabet, words, and even long sentences in English, French and German. The perfecting of this machine was the work of a life time. It had much attention from the large audience present last evening, and is certainly a curiosity well worth an examination.

BED OF PANTOMIME.

The one thousandth and first representation of "Humpty Dumpty" took place at the Olympic Theatre last evening. The performance ended the very protracted run of the play in this City. Its profits, which must have been handsome, accrued to Mr. J. L. FOX, who appeared not only as Humpty Dumpty, but also as Wormwood in the farce, preliminary to the pantomime, of "The Lottery Ticket." After the curtain had fallen upon this piece, Mr. FOX was called before the foot-lights, whence he addressed the very large and hilarious audience as follows:

"LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: I am almost ashamed to come out before you in habiliments like these, and, as I am not used to public speaking, except when I commit my words to memory, I hope you will excuse me from making any lengthened remarks on this occasion. But you must see that I return you my sincere and heartfelt thanks—as they all say. Everybody knows that's said, and I hope I am right there. I have been in New-York just twenty-one years, and I always boast of it. I was quite a youngster when I first came here, and I am an old 'rooster' now. [Laughter.] But, ladies and gentlemen, I always strive to do my best. Neither sickness nor anything else keeps me away. For twenty-one years have I been in New-York, and I have never missed a night for sickness or any other cause. There are a great many here that know that, and my heart is so full that they must speak for me."

The performance then proceeded. The Olympic will be closed until Monday next.

Sunday Rowdyism.

There appears to be some occult connection between crime and the variations of the thermometer. No sooner are the Summer heats fairly upon us, than there straightway breaks forth such a crop of brawls, assaults, and murders as justifies the remark of BERVOLIO touching the connection between mad blood and hot days. Two people are already dead, and two more are at the point of death, in consequence of deeds of violence perpetrated in this City between Sunday morning and Monday night. Another four or five are lying in hospital, suffering from the effects of dangerous wounds inflicted during the same interval. The greater portion of the crimes of which these "casualties" have been the results were the outcome of simple law-

A Few Corrections.

Mr. GREELEY's organ was unusually industrious yesterday, and though we make no pretense of following all its wild blunders, it is worth while to expose a few.

Some time since it was discovered that the report of the testimony in the case of DON CARLOS BUELL was missing from the War Department. The Greeley papers instantly started the insinuation that the papers had been destroyed in the interest of some of BUELL's fellow-commanders, pointing particularly, and more or less openly, to Gens. GRANT and SHERMAN. Yesterday the report of the Investigating Committee on this subject was published. It established the fact that Gen. BUELL testified unqualifiedly that Gens. GRANT and SHERMAN were fully exonerated from any possible share in the business. Whereupon the Tribune publishes the following: "Gen. BADEAU has the records in his office in London, or at least he has those which he has not destroyed." Now, the records which the Tribune insinuates have been taken possession of by BADEAU, and partly destroyed, are the BUELL records. The tenor of its article conveys that insinuation and none other. But in point of fact, BADEAU has not those records and never had them. What papers he has are certain letters which were lent to him by the Adjutant-General, to assist him in compiling his history of Gen. GRANT's campaigns. These were, before being put into his hands, carefully indexed, and there is not the slightest reason to suppose that they have been destroyed, or that Gen. BADEAU cannot or will not be held to a strict accountability for them. If this seems an undue explanation of a few lines, it is caused by the fact that the few lines referred to contain an extensive and malignant misrepresentation.

A similar spirit is shown in an elaborate attack on Congress, in the course of which it is declared that "an intolerant Senate, secure in a long term of office, resolutely defeated the attempt to secure further civil rights for the blacks." This is the reverse of the truth. The Senate twice voted to add Mr. SUMNER's Civil Rights bill to the Amnesty bill, and then gave the amended bill more than a majority vote. It required two-thirds, and so failed. Had Mr. SUMNER chosen to let his bill take the usual course, it could doubtless have been passed. One by Mr. CARPENTER, of the same general character, finally did pass the Senate by a strong party vote. It was defeated in the House by the negro-hating Democrats, from whom Mr. GREELEY is now begging an indorsement. We do not now criticise the morality of representing the Senate as having killed the Civil Rights bill; but, in the name of common sense, what is the use of a falsehood so easily exposed?

The Tribune, in the same attack on Congress—which merits its special spite for having utterly taken the wind from the "Liberal" sails—speaks as follows of those who "controlled affairs:"

"They have directed the general business of Congress solely with a view to influence the nomination and re-election of Gen. GRANT, and have stopped at nothing which seemed to fortify themselves and their chief in power."

There is only one sense in which this is true, and that is the exact contrary of the sense in which it was written. The only way in which the general business of Congress has been made to influence the nomination and re-election of Gen. GRANT has been by conforming to several of his recommendations, which were obviously for the popular interest. He suggested a reduction of taxation, and Congress made it. He ad-

A STRANGE STORY.

A Man Confesses a Murder and Cuts His Throat.

The Result of Investigations in this City—What Became of the Telegrams—He Implicates a Man in New-York.

Worcester, Mass., has become the scene of a strange tragedy, the end of which is not yet clearly manifested. On Friday night last two men arrived in Worcester by the Eastern-bound train, and requested the police officers on duty at Washington-square Station to direct them to some member of the Masonic fraternity. The men were referred to Officer SPRAGUE, who was found by them near the Post-office alley-way leading from Pearl into Pleasant-street. One of the men addressed SPRAGUE, and said he wished to find a Mason who would send a message or messenger to New-York. The man exhibited to the officer A roll of bank notes as an earnest that he could pay expenses. The man said he did not wish to write to New-York himself, as detectives were on the lookout for him; but it was not for theft. Officer SPRAGUE, desiring to learn more, offered to write to the brother in New-York, whereupon the man borrowed a pencil and wrote the following message, reading it over carefully several times: "Keep quiet; don't say a word; will come out all right." He also gave the officer an envelope directed to D. SCHNELL, No. 413 West Forty-fourth-street, New-York, and wrote upon the other side of it "D. LUTERA, College Point, Long Island." Those, the man said, were the addresses of his brother and brother-in-law. He also told the officer that he would find his (the stranger's) name inside the envelope, and then walked off composedly with his companion along Front-street. The officer reported the matter to his superiors, but nothing was thought of it.

Shortly before 5 o'clock on Saturday morning, a man called at the residence of Mr. CHARLES BELCHER, just outside the city, and found him in the barn at the corner of Pleasant and Dewey streets. On meeting him, the man said, "You are just the one I want to see." Claiming to be a Mason, and giving signs, he admitted that he, with two others, had murdered a man in New-York, from which place he had come by an early train. He asked Mr. BELCHER to carry him a distance into the country and offered to pay him. He told Mr. BELCHER that his name was HENRY SCHNELL; that he had been sentenced to be hanged, and that he had but one day to live. Mr. BELCHER thought the man was insane, and his appearance was without excitement, and he therefore told him to wait a few moments; whereupon the man asked him for a razor to cut his throat. Mr. BELCHER had intended to take the man to a Police station, but while preparing to do so, an employé rushed into the house and told Mr. BELCHER that there was something wrong in the barn. Upon returning thereto, he was found that the strange man had nearly severed his head from his body with a scythe that had hung on a string-piece.

News of the tragedy reaching Officer SPRAGUE, he opened the envelope and found the name of HENRY SCHNELL, and this fact becoming known, inquiries were made, and among the first to view the body was a young German who had recently worked as a cigar-maker in Westfield, Mass. Without knowing any of the facts as set forth above, he immediately identified the dead man by saying, "That's SCHNELL." He gave the history of the man as follows: "Some two or three months ago, SCHNELL, who was employed in a cigar factory in Westfield, Mass., became acquainted with and enamored of a widow lady in that town, and is thought to have been mentally deranged by her failure to return his affection. He attempted then to commit suicide, (which was evident from the pencil-mark around his neck and wrist, at the autopsy,) but he did not make the attempt until after being foiled, by interference of other parties, in an attempt to stab the man who had proved his successful rival."

It was thought that SCHNELL might have family friends in Westfield, and a message was telegraphed to the Chief of Police there. The reply stated that there were no relatives of the man there, but that it was understood that he had a mother, a sister and a brother in New-York. The young man who furnished the history of SCHNELL's Westfield experiences, also said that he was understood to have a wife and family in New-York, and Coroner RICE telegraphed during Saturday night to the address, No. 411 West Forty-fourth-street, stating that SCHNELL had committed suicide here and asking if he was known there.

The failure to receive a reply by Monday having excited some suspicion, the inquest has been delayed in consequence—the body being packed in ice to await further identification. The reporter of the TIMES called yesterday at No. 411 West Forty-fourth-street, and asked for Mr. SCHNELL. A person in the house directed him to the back room on the second floor, and on arriving at the room he found a German, (the only one in the house,) together with an Irish woman and a little child. The room was apparently a kitchen, but a better-class room led off from it, and from this latter were had the rooms. Upon asking, the man at first answered in the affirmative; but, upon making inquiries relative to his supposed brother in Massachusetts, the man, after looking at the woman, who cautiously closed the door leading to the better-class room, said there was a mistake, as his name was not SCHNELL, but "SCHNEIDLER." He then sullenly refrained from answering any other questions, and at the suggestion of the woman, remembered he had an engagement elsewhere. He left the room, and finally the house; and the woman being also a "German-nothing," the reporter's quest-ioned his inquiries elsewhere. From others in the house he learned that the man had always been known as SCHNELL, and that within a short time three telegrams had been received at the house for Mr. SCHNELL, which had been delivered to him, or to the woman. In the course of conversation the Irish woman stated that she had inadvertently spoken to others in the house of a brother in the country, who had telegraphed that he was sick, but she supposed he was going to get married, and wanted to induce them to come on by a pretense of sickness.

The description of the man who committed suicide is thus given: "Of medium height and build, and about thirty years of age, full-faced, and with a high forehead; his hair was dark brown, and he wore a sandy mustache. He was clothed in a black overcoat, vest and pants, with no undercoat, wore a white shirt and under-shirt, brown stockings and calf boots. None of his clothing was marked."

The strange conduct of the man at No. 411 West Forty-fourth-street may perhaps be accounted for in connection with the dispatch before alluded to, and worded "Keep quiet; don't say a word; we'll come out all right." The appearance of the man himself is not unlike the above description, with the exception of the clothing.

THE BRIDGEPORT TRAGEDY.

Increased Rewards Offered—Proclamations by Gov. Jewell and Mayor Goodsell.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BRIDGEPORT, Tuesday, June 11, 1872.

The annexed proclamation, though signed by Gov. JEWELL on Saturday last, as stated in the TIMES of the following morning, was not made public until today. Omitting the customary legal phraseology at the beginning and close, the text is as follows:

PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, GEORGE M. COLVOCORESSES, of Litchfield, Conn., was murdered at Bridgeport, in the County of Fairfield, in the State of Connecticut, on the night of the 3d of June, A. D., 1872.

I do hereby, upon application of the Attorney of the State in said county, offer a reward of two thousand ($2,000) dollars, to be paid to the person or persons who shall make discovery and give information against any other person or persons who were guilty of said crime, so that he or they may be tendered to justice and convicted; said reward to be paid from the State Treasury by order of the Court before whom such conviction shall be had.

MARSHALL JEWELL.

By His Excellency: HENRY E. TAINTOR, Executive Secretary.

As the first of this document, which has been printed for general distribution, is a notice offering by the widow of the deceased, offering a further reward of $5,000, upon the same conditions.

The Bridgeport City Council, last evening, authorized Mayor GOODSELL to proclaim a reward of $2,000 in behalf of the city, making the sum total of reward now offered $20,000.

H. O. STOKES and ALONZO SWORDS, jail-birds who escaped from the county jail after the murder, have established a satisfactory alibi. The same is true of the inmates of a house near the scene of the bloody deed, who were for some time under suspicion and their movements closely watched.

In spite of the statements in a cheap New-York journal of disreputable character, the police have been diligently at work ever since the commission of the crime, and Capt. ELMORE is already in possession of important clews, which in a few days it is thought will dispel the mystery surrounding this tragical affair.

The Suit Against Gen. Butler.

In the United States Circuit Court yesterday, before Judge SHIPMAN, the case of HENRY A. TILDEN against Gen. BENJAMIN F. BUTLER, to recover $40,000 damages for the alleged unlawful seizure of his steam-ship Nassau, when military Governor of New-Orleans, under the pretense that it was required to aid in suppressing the rebellion, was on trial. It is alleged that the seizure was false and fraudulent, and the defense is the general issue. WM. H. WINGER, one of Gen. BUTLER's Aids, testified that he was in the office of the commander, Capt. HAGGERTY, when ANDREW JACKSON BUTLER, brother of the General, entered and said the steamer Nassau was just such a one as he wanted to bring his sugar and cotton in, and he should have her if she were to be seized. There was an understanding that when A. J. BUTLER entered the office, the Aids were to leave. The teller of the bank from which A. J. BUTLER drew money to pay for the vessel, and ALFRED DE COSTA, were examined, but their evidence was not important, and the case has gone over until this morning.

THE JAPANESE EMBASSY.

Our Visitors at West Point—Their Interest in What They Saw at the Academy—Future Movements.

The Japanese Embassy left the St. Nicholas yesterday morning, at as early hour, and embarked on the Albany steamer Chauncey Vibbard, en route for West Point. They were as the guests of the Government, and were under the charge of Gen. WM. MAYNARD, United States Army. The party was accompanied by Mr. C. W. BRIDGES, the American attaché of the Embassy, who is Consular Agent at San Francisco, and who will travel with them through their European tour and on their return to Japan via the East and India. They were also accompanied by Mr. MORE, the Japanese Chargé d'Affaires at Washington, and by Dr. ROBERT J. SLOAN. Of the Embassy proper there were twenty-one persons, including the High Daimio IWAKURA, the Ambassador; YAMAGUCHI and KIDO, the Secretaries of Legation; SOBOWARRI, one of the attachés, who was formerly a student here in America, and MIYAMORI and MAYORKI and the other members of the party. They were in great spirits, evidently enjoying the interest they excited among the numerous passengers on the vessel. About two-thirds of the party were landed at Cozzens', and the remainder, including the Ambassador and Gen. MAYNARD, went on to the landing at West Point, this separation being rendered inevitable by the crowded state of the hotels. The Ambassador was received at the landing by Gen. RUGER, the commandant, and two subalterns, and after compliments had been exchanged, in which the Japanese have proved themselves adepts, took the carriages that had been provided, and drove rapidly to the West Point House. As they entered the military precincts they were honored by a salute of five guns, and when they descended from the carriages the Secretary of War, Hon. Mr. BELKNAP, shook hands cordially with the ladies. The cadets then marched past in slow and quick time, and were afterward put through battalion drill by Gen. RUGER. There was an immense concourse of ladies present, and they divided their attention between the visitors and the cadets, waving their handkerchiefs to the Embassy and clapping their gloved hands whenever a striking manœuvre was performed.

After parade was dismissed everybody returned to the two hotels. At the West Point House Senators RAMSEY and CAMERON had arrived in the mean time, and greeted the Embassy heartily. The Japanese gentlemen, who speak English really very well, and are extremely polite and suave, were introduced to the belles of the Point, and were shown the finest views and the best walks. Several of our dusky friends are quite handsome in features and distinguished in bearing, and if they were able to sew longer clothes would soon be again in the ranks of the cadets, who are already the cynosure of all eyes. But they leave here on Tuesday for Niagara, and thence are bound for the Boston Jubilee. To-morrow the Ambassador will witness the manœuvring of light artillery, by Gen. RUGER, which he has expressed himself greatly interested. There is no doubt that the Embassy are very shrewd observers in all matters connected with commercial and mechanical matters, but they don't care much for scenery, and the grandest views of the unrivaled Hudson were quite lost upon them. However, they evidently enjoy travelling, and Gen. MAYNARD is an admirable representative of the nation's hospitality.

THE BIBLE IN THE SCHOOLS.

The Bible War in Long Island—Decision by the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Yesterday the decision of ABRAM B. WEYER, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, in the case of the late Bible difficulty in Hunter's Point was received and caused the utmost excitement and enthusiasm among the Catholics of Long Island City and Brooklyn. All last night bonfires were seen blazing through the streets of Long Island City, and crowds congregated around the dwellings of the trustees, through whose instrumentality mainly the question was brought to an issue. There is no appeal from this decision except to the Legislature. The decision is given on three appeals made to the Superintendent against the Board of Education of Long Island City, (1) by the Trustees of the First Ward of that city; (2) by OWEN MCGINNESS and others, and (3) by EDWARD MCBENNETT and others. The Superintendent says: The ground of appeal in all these cases is the action of the respondents under a provision of a by-law adopted by them for the conduct of the schools under their charge. That provision is in the following words: "The daily opening exercises shall consist of the reading of a portion of the Holy Scriptures without note or comment."

The appellants in the first of these cases complain of the enforcement, under the direction of the respondents, of the provision of the by-law above quoted, thereby compelling the pupils in the school of the First Ward, to be present at the reading of the Bible therein, under penalty of expulsion from the school in case of their non-attendance at such reading. The appellants in the second appeal complain of the threatened expulsion in some instances of their children from the Fifth Ward school, because the appellants forbid their attendance upon the religious exercises in question.

The third appeal is by a residents of the Second Ward of Long Island City, who alleges that his child was expelled from the school of that ward for refusing, under direction of the appellant, to attend at the reading of the Bible therein.

The question presented by these cases is not a new one in the history of the public schools of this State. The following observations in a former decision rendered by me, are equally applicable here:

"The object of the common school system of this State is to afford means of secular instruction to all children over five and under twenty-one years of age resident therein. There is no authority in the law to use as a matter of right any portion of the regular school hours in connection with any religious exercises of which the attendance of the scholars is made compulsory. On the other hand, there is nothing to prevent the reading of the Scriptures or the performance of other religious exercises by the teacher in the presence of such of the scholars as may attend voluntarily, or by the direction of their parents or guardians, if it be done before the hour fixed for the opening of the school or after the dismissal of the school."

The same view of this subject was expressed by my immediate predecessor, the late Hon. V. M. RICE, who in a decision rendered by him Feb. 5, 1864, said: "A teacher has no right to consume any portion of the regular school hours in conducting religious exercises, especially where objections is raised."—Code of Public Instruction, p. 349.

The action of the Board of Education of Long Island City in directing the reading of a portion of the Bible as an opening exercise in the schools under their charge during school hours, and in excluding pupils from those schools, or any of them, on the grounds of declining to be present at such reading, has been without warrant of law.

The appeals must therefore be and are hereby sustained. The proper course for those who are dissatisfied with the rule established by the decisions above cited, and who desire a different or more explicit regulation on the subject, is to apply to the Legislature for such enactment as will meet their views. Contentions about the constructions of general principles of law might thus be obviated by plain statutory provisions.

All persons otherwise entitled to attend any of the schools of Long Island City, and who have been and are excluded therefrom for a refusal to be present at the reading of the Bible therein, have the right to be admitted to such schools upon the same footing as the other pupils regularly attending them, and it is therefore the duty of the said Board of Education to see that the right of all such persons in that respect is accorded to them.

Opening of Schools, Station & Grand Army Music Needed.

A more agreeable pastime for people of leisure, who have a taste for the curious and beautiful, can scarcely be conceived of than a few hours' dalliance among the art treasures and bijouterien exposed for sale at the mammoth establishment of SCHUYLER, HARTLEY & GRAHAM, Nos. 20 and 22 John-street, and 19 Maiden-lane. These large importers having recently enlarged their business capacity by the addition of a new store, have in turn increased their stock of goods by the importation of fresh and costly invoices. Below stairs is the finest stock of pistols, guns, game bags and apparatus of the fowler that is to be found in the City. The bronzes, Parian marble goods, and the great collection of other articles of vertu are very numerous and fine. In fact, a person can purchase a variety of bronzes, gilt mantelets, porphyry and other articles. It would be an endless task to undertake to recount the catalogue of costly things to be met with everywhere in this establishment. Like the Indian salesmen, those of Messrs. SCHUYLER, HARTLEY & GRAHAM might exclaim, "We have everything."

REPUBLICAN FRANCE.

The Reorganization of the Army—Gen. Trochu on the Question—The Armée of Meaux—Theory Without Practice—Duke D'Aumale's Remarks.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Wednesday, May 29, 1872.

The debate on the question of army recruitments has brought out a diversity of opinion among army men which is really surprising. Among the general officers in the Assembly, one-half believe that soldiers should be "thinking bayonets," and not mere machines in the hands of their officers; the other half believe that the soldier must never think for himself, but act, as in the German army, like the part of a machine to which he has been completely fitted. The latter demand obligatory service, a new law of recruitment and no substitutes; the former reply that this was the system of the Empire, and that Frenchmen will not be treated like sheep, as German soldiers are treated in their "nation of serfpeople." The advocates of the German system will carry the day, however, and I mention the difference at first in order to show how widely men differ as to the causes leading to the French defeats in the late war.

GEN. TROCHU'S SPEECH.

The first speech made upon this question was by Gen. TROCHU. It was a very clever effort—a really admirable discourse. It is not often that I have had occasion to praise Gen. TROCHU, but I have no hesitation in doing so in this instance, for his speech was excellent in every way. It was carefully prepared, well written, well studied, and, as a literary production, was something far above the common run of speeches in the National Assembly. In looking for the causes of French weakness and demoralisation, M. TROCHU went back to the first Empire, and to LOUIS XIV., and M. BRUNET completed the record by extending the evil to the times of FRANÇOIS I. and CHARLEMAGNE. Between the two, therefore, we have the assurance that the French have been in a perpetual state of decadence from the earliest annals. But in going back to LOUIS XIV., Gen. TROCHU had some reason on his side, for the evil, in his opinion, is called "military legends," and they surely began as early as the time of the grand monarch. According to him the "pride of victories has principally contributed to the fall of nations," and in evidence he quotes ROSBACH and the "glories of LOUIS XIV." the renown of FREDERICK the Great disappearing at Jena; the halo of NAPOLEON I.'s soldiers humiliated in 1815 and 1870." Gen. TROCHU gave a sketch—a very interesting one, too—of the rise and fall of European armies, and attributed their fall to their "legends," or to that confidence of victory which has been seen in the French armies since the successes of NAPOLEON. If one were only permitted to amend the phrase "pride of victories" into "love of conquest," one might go back beyond the Punic war and show how it had caused the fall of nations. Whether or not the Napoleonic legend of victory has demoralized the French soldier is an open question. Gen. TROCHU thinks it is the major cause of the fall of France, but that seems to me only an element, a large one, perhaps, but no more the cause of the decadence of France than several others which might be named. For example, it might be shown that all countries which have remained under priestly rule had religious superstition have been rapidly gaining ground in decadence, while Protestant countries have been marching on in freedom and enlightened progress. But each man thinks he can put his finger upon the sore, and Gen. TROCHU claims to have found it: "Military legends," he forcibly declares, have caused the ruin of France, the decadence of the French.

THE ABUSE OF HONORS.

But, although we may believe that the General takes a narrow view of the matter, we cannot contest the truth of his words, or deny that he has put his finger upon one of the main sources of the present state of things. Furthermore, we cannot deny the merits of his studied speech, and I confess that I have read it with the interest usually given to romance. In addition to "legends," Gen. TROCHU finds another trouble, which is the immoderate love of stripes and ribbons, of decorations of all sorts, so profusely distributed by every Government. Every Frenchman feels that something is wanting to his complete happiness so long as he has no bit of ribbon in his button-hole, and all Governments have known how to play upon this mania. Gen. TROCHU denounced it in strong terms—denounced the Governments which had been so liberal in bestowing orders—and ridicules the general fondness for them among all classes of Frenchmen. "Why," said he, taking a small triangle, suspended from a red ribbon, from his pocket, "even the Commune had to establish its order of Chivalary—here it is—the ribbon being very nearly the same as for the Legion of Honor." Gen. TROCHU made a ridiculous sensation when dangling his triangle before his colleagues, but what he said was perfectly true, and struck every one as being so. "Military legends" and the love for "orders" are, therefore, the cause of France's ruin, according to Gen. TROCHU; both are most excellent things, according to Col. DENFERT, the gallant defender of Belfort. Yet he does not believe in centralization. He wants "thinking baropets," and he uttered words which sounded so much like encouraging troops to indiscipline that the Left applauded bravely, and old Gen. CHANGARNIER rushed to the tribune to reprove such utterances on the part of a French General. The old soldier's voice was weak, and could scarcely be heard; but if he could have roared like the bulls of Bashan it would have made no difference, for the Left was determined not to hear him. CHANGARNIER lost his temper. His angry gestures were understood, but not a sound of his voice could be heard after a few phrases, and he was literally hooted out of the tribune. The indignant old man had to write out what he was supposed to have said for the Journal Officiel, and the Left could not be quieted until the Duc D'AUMALE rose to address the Assembly.

THEORY WITHOUT PRACTICE.

One word here before going further. Gen. TROCHU denounced preceding Governments for their profusion in granting decorations. Well, of all Governments France has ever had, that of Gen. TROCHU was the worst in this respect, for sixty thousand crosses of the Legion d'Honneur were granted in the short period of its existence, and the whole number decorated and nominated amount to about one hundred thousand! Gen. TROCHU bitterly reproached his country-men for their fondness for decorations. Well, no man in France wears more than himself. He is literally covered with medals, crosses, and plaques, and I once saw them two deep across his breast. He is rarely ever seen without one or more, and he has accepted several from each of the Governments he has served. Hence, M. TROCHU knows what he is talking about, and has had a large experience in the faults and follies he so justly and so ably denounces.

REMARKS OF DUKE D'AUMALE.

The Duc D'AUMALE made an excellent speech also. He is in favor of the German system. He wants a strong army. His partakes of CHANGARNIER's opinion, and he is, moreover, in perfect accord with the Commission which reported the Military bill. Hence it will be observed, since the Commission and the Government are agreed, that Monsieur appears as in favor of the Government. This being the case, and they no doubt that there was no particular necessity for his speaking at all, but the Duke had a special point to make. The new law proposes that the men drafted who can neither read nor write shall remain one year longer than the others, in order to perfect themselves. Monsieur D'AUMALE thinks this too severe, since it would be punishing the unfortunates for the negligence of their parents and not for a fault of their own. The Duke speaks well, he has a fine appearance in the tribune, his words are well chosen, he has a good voice and his words are well expressed. He is yet in the habit of stopping his eyes and bending down his head, but when that has worn away he will make his mark.

ABBEY.

Preparations for Mr. Bennett's Funeral.

Mr. BENNETT and his sister arrived from Europe yesterday, on the steamer Java. They did not learn of their father's death until after the vessel was boarded by the Health Officers, inside of Sandy Hook. On reaching his residence, on Fifth-avenue, Mr. BENNETT was visited by a number of friends, who tendered him their sympathetic sympathies. The funeral of the late Mr. BENNETT will take place to-morrow at

AN INDIAN HURRICANE.

Terrible Storm at Madras—Numerous Wrecks and Large Loss of Life in the Interior.

A correspondent of the London Times sends to that journal an account of the recent terrible hurricane. He says:

"During the 3 months of April and May the weather in Madras is usually almost a dead calm, relieved only by the daily movement of air known when it proceeds toward the sea as the land wind, and when it comes from the sea as the sea breeze. From January to the end of May no drop of rain is expected, and when, about the middle of April, the slight north-east wind gives way to a still slighter south-west wind, Madras is in for hot weather. What sole means may be guessed from the fact that Madras stands in DOVER's great list as the hottest place in the world. Things bore their usual aspect till the last day of April, when, almost without warning, heavy rain set in. On the following day, the 1st of May, rain continued, but Drought with it a strong wind, which increased in violence throughout the day, until, towards evening, it became a perfect gale, and the strength of the wind did not increase faster than the intensity of the rain. Old Indians foresaw a storm, and began to talk when the shine were going out into the wide, and therefore comparatively safe, expanse of the Bay of Bengal. Madras roads were then well furnished with shipping, except that, by a strange accident, an steamer was anchored there. Usually there are three or four. There were, however, 4 ships, 3 barques, and fifteen smaller vessels known as "coasters"—vessels built in the country and manned by native crews—holding about the same relation in size and quality to the other shipping as the old collier guard ships did between Newcastle and London did to the noble East Indiamen which used to lie off Blackwall. Some of the larger ships were owned and manned by natives also, but twelve of them were splendid English ships, two upon their first voyage.

Any a weather-wise Englishman drove down to the pier-head on the morning of May 1st to see for himself that the ships were gone, and returned grieved at heart. I had seen fourteen ships on those same four years before, and a year later had stood by while another brave vessel had driven through the splendid pier. On both occasions I had seen the crews of English craft had saved themselves by slipping their cables and running out to sea. On neither occasion had things so dont a look as now, yet there every ship rode at anchor, proudly unconscious of the fate that was before it. As I turned sadly away three and thirty last ceased sleepily over the angry wave, as if they neither knew nor cared by what strange power they were held to the water. By 1 o'clock the gale had begun in earnest. It was but May 2. But three of this great fleet were still riding there, and one of them had lost two of its masts, all the rest lay strewing the shore. But Lanciepate. The gale increased as night wore on. At about midnight Mr. BOSCOE, the astronomer, telegraphed from the Observatory to the Port Office that a fearful storm was at hand, but that the marine authorities ought to have known long before, for the glass had fallen fully half an inch. Shortly after this the ships were ordered from the shore to get ready, and at 3 in the morning the signal for slipping cables was called to sea. It was too late. The question was not how to get to sea, but how to keep off the shore. The storm was fearful, and the surf rolled clear over everything. Wind and wave were dead set for the shore. At 3 A. M. the native craft was almost all loose, drifting steadily before the wind. At 4 o'clock the cyclone was at its height, and half the English ships were adrift.

About 10 in the morning two more ships broke loose—the Hotspur and Sir Robert Seppings. The former is or was one of the most favorite ships that ever sailed to India, and on her every voyage was crowded with passengers. Of the Seppings I know not, for there is no list published of vessels built in the country and manned by native crews—holding about the same relation in size and quality to the other ships as the old collier guard ships did between Newcastle and London did to the noble East Indiamen which used to lie off Blackwall. THE TEXAS BONDS.

The Examination Today by the Stock Exchange—The Question as to Bestdad.

The Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange are to decide upon a question this morning relative to some recent sales of Texas State bonds, which it is charged by Gov. DAVIS of that State were obtained fraudulently. The facts of the case, as stated by Mr. F. H. BERRIEN, of No. 2 Exchange Court, a broker, who is one of the persons directly interested, are as follows: In March last Mr. BERRIEN was visited by Mr. B. G. COLES, a depositor in the Bowery National Bank who wished him to find out whether Texas ten per cent. bonds were good delivery on the Exchange. Mr. BERRIEN was informed by the Bond Committee that they were so. He then gave the broker two orders to sell, first $1,000 worth and next $2,000 worth. The first lot was sold at 89 and the second at 88. Another order to sell $2,000 worth was given to Mr. BERRIEN. As there was no lot in the market for them, the broker could not get rid of them. Mr. W. G. CLARKE, Vice-President of the Bowery National Bank, then called upon Mr. BERRIEN and gave him an order to sell $12,000 worth of the bonds at 88. Of this lot, three were disposed of at that price, and the balance remained for some time unsold.

Mr. CLARKE came to Mr. BERRIEN's office and told him that the parties owning the bonds were anxious to get rid of them, and if he could sell $20,000 worth at anything over 80 he would be given an order to do so. Mr. BERRIEN went to the Board and REUBEN MANLY's broker bid 84, and, after some haggling, finally bought $14,000 worth of the bonds at 85. The sale was made May 24, and the bonds were delivered May 27. On May 28 MANLY sent Mr. BERRIEN a letter saying that the bonds were not a good delivery. Upon calling upon Mr. MANLY to know why they were not a good delivery, BERRIEN was informed that Gov. DAVIS, of Texas, had served a notice upon the Bowery National Bank forbidding it to sell the bonds. BERRIEN was told in substance that all he had to do was to go to Messrs. CLARKE & COLES and that they would take them up, both gentlemen being responsible. CLARKE & COLES when asked by BERRIEN refused to take them up, averring that they were perfectly good, and had been sold to the Bowery National Bank. Mr. BERRIEN then went to the bank with Mr. CLARKE to see President DE GRAAF. This gentleman said he would not take up the bonds, as the Stock Exchange had said that they were good delivery. He was told that the bank had sold the bonds after it had been notified by Gov. DAVIS not to sell, and the payment of interest had been stopped upon them by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company. He still refused to take them up, saying that he would make a test case of it. Mr. BERRIEN says, and would sooner fight an individual than a State. Notice, Mr. BERRIEN avers, had been issued in accordance with the decision of the Courts upon the Bowery National Bank and the Citizens' Savings Bank, which also held a portion of the bonds, and Gov. DAVIS, when he notified the Bowery National Bank, was accompanied by Mr. CORDIT and Mr. WHITUS, financial agent of Texas. Mr. BERRIEN states that he has been informed that the coupons of the bonds in the two banks were cut off and given to Gov. DAVIS.

The question to be decided stands at present as follows: Gov. DAVIS holds that the bonds were obtained fraudulently from the State of Texas.

Messrs. Reuben Manly & Co., Fells & Tillson, Mr. Butler, Wm. Alexander Smith & Co., who have bought the bonds thrown upon the market by BERRIEN, are of course anxious to discover who is responsible for their redemption, to save them from loss. If the Governing Committee decide that Mr. BERRIEN is not to be held responsible, a suit will be probably managed against the Bowery National Bank by the losing brokers. Mr. BERRIEN, who claims to be innocent of any attempt at deception in the matter, awaits the action of the Committee.

A letter in the possession of Mr. BERRIEN reads as follows:

This is to certify that the Texas 10 per cent. bonds sold by you at my request were for account of Bowery National Bank.

HOW THE CITY WAS PAVED.

The Contracts of Messrs. Baird—Mr. Waterbury's Work on Ninth and Stuyvesant Streets.

Commissioners SUTHERLAND, VAN VORST and JAQUES resumed their investigation into the facts and circumstances relating to the contracts and awards made by the Mayor, &c., for City paving, last evening at the Sixth District Court. On the opening of the session, the case of Messrs. BAIRD for grading and paving a portion of One Hundred and Thirty-fifth-street was resumed. The testimony previously produced was detrimental to the case of the contractors, but the evidence of some of the property-owners, and especially that of Mr. JAQUES, last evening, tended to show that the prices quoted in the contracts were not considering the difficulties the contractors had to contend with in getting the materials necessary for the work.

Mr. BAIRD, another contractor, corroborated the testimony of Mr. JAMES, and swore that he would not do the work at the price Mr. BAIRD had contracted to do it, if he knew it.

The case of Mr. WATERBURY, for paving portions of Ninth and Stuyvesant streets, was next resumed. Mr. TATHAM, the Chairman of a committee of property-owners on the line of these streets, produced testimony on the whole similar to that previously reported in the TIMES in reference to this case, especially in regard to that portion of it which related to defendant's statement that the work had been done with the consent of the property-owners.

In cross-examination, Mr. TATHAM elicited from Mr. WATERBURY that the same kind of pavement had been laid in Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and even in this City at a much lower rate than $5 per yard, which is the price charged in the disputed contract. Counsel for Mr. WATERBURY, however, explained that in some cities where the price paid for paving was $3 $3, $4, or $4 50 per yard, the Company was paid additional for grading, whereas, in Ninth and Stuyvesant streets, this City, the $5 included the grading. In support of this seeming difference in the prices, the foreman of the Nicolsen Pavement Company, who superintended the paving of the streets in question, testified that they were previously paved with the Fifth avenue pavement and that it took him longer to take up the old pavement than it did to lay down the new. Witness also testified that the old pavement was in a very bad condition. This portion of the testimony is denied by the representatives of the property-owners who in their case not only claim that the Department of Works had no power to order the work to be done, but also that the street did not require repaving, hence the alleged fraud. Evidence was also produced that the charge of $1 50 for bridge stones was somewhat extravagant. The case was adjourned.

YACHTING.

A Lively Scrub Race in Jersey.

The adjourned race from Capt. SAM KETCHUM's, on the South Cove, Jersey City, yesterday, failed to bring out more than four competitors, although several other boats were out to witness it. The boats which entered were the Emily P., Capt. FRANK BATES, and the Pigeon, Capt. J. SMITH, in the first class, and the Lakey, Capt. SAMUEL ALBERTS, and the Bird Diddie, Capt. GARY, in the second class. The course for the first-class sloops was from the gap at the mouth of the Cove to and around Robin's Reef Light-house and return; for the second-class the course was five times around the Cove, distance in all five miles.

The wind was blowing freshly from the north-west and the little craft had all they wanted to do to keep up.

At 2:22 the gun was fired for the second class to get off. The Lakey was first away, and took the lead, maintaining it to the end, winning the race by one minute. Time—Lakey, 1 hour 3 minutes; Bird Diddie, 1 hour 4 minutes.

The first-class sloops made a flying start, the Emily P. passing the Gem at 2, and the Pigeon shortly after. The Emily P. finally sailed in the winner at 4 hours 24 minutes and 58 seconds. The jib halyards of the Pigeon gave way, as she was returning. The prize in each class was a champion whip. The Judges were Capts. ARCHIBALD BELL, of the Harlem Yacht Club, and Commodore HILL of the Jersey Yacht Club.

Yachting Notes.

The Columbia Yacht Club regatta, to-day, is the first regular regatta of the season, and will be contested by about sixteen yachts, the course being from the foot of Fifty-seventh-street to Fort Lee, thence back to the coal dock, Hoboken, thence to the club-house, going over the course twice. The steamer Fort Lee will accompany the yachts over the course, conveying the guests of the club.

The Town Boys' Baltimore having boasted the possession of a very fast boat, Capt. KETCHUM is anxious to match the Comet against them.

The Madahoc, Commodore JACOB VOORHIS, Jr., and the Tidal Wave, WILLIAM VOORHIS, are lying off Hoboken ready for the season's work.

The Atlantic Yacht Club have been made between the sloops Dart, of the Union Club, and the Brogue, of the Jersey City Club, to take place on the 25th, from Oyster Island, ten miles to windward and back.

Arrangements are being perfected for a union regatta between sloops from 20 to 25 feet in length. Mr. FRANK BATES is Secretary of the Committee of Arrangements.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Although the attendance at the Exchange yesterday (Tuesday, June 11) was quite large, the auctions of the day pent with but little success, only one sale being made, viz.: Sale by A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co. of one lot, 25.8 by W., situate on the south-west corner of Fourth-avenue and One Hundred and Seventeenth-street, for $9,350; purchaser, H. CASSIDY. MULLER, WILKINS & CO. offered at public auction quite an extensive list of City realty, embracing thirty-five lots, forming the entire block bounded by Avenue A, the Harlem River, One Hundred and Thirteenth and One Hundred and Fourteenth streets. A lot with shop thereon on the west side of Avenue A, north of One Hundred and Fourteenth-street, and a house and lot (lease-hold) No. 346 Monroe-street, but without effecting a sale in either instance. The leasehold sale of a house and lot on West Eighteenth-street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, by JAMES M. MILLER, was adjourned until Tuesday of next week, June 18, and a similar sale, by E. P. FAIRCHILD, of property on the south side of East Ninety-eighth-street, first west Second and Third avenues was adjourned to the same date. In regard to the suburban auctions held yesterday, reports will be made to-morrow, and also, if received, a report concerning the sale of East New-York lots, by J. COLE, will be published.

The auction conducted by Jesse Jones, Jr., at Dariem Creek, on Monday, June 10, was a certain extent, successful in its results. Some fifty-eight plots of land, in size each from 20 by 100 to one acre in extent, being disposed of for $13,345 00. The buyers were principally from Darien and the surrounding cities and towns. The sale held at Pleasure Bay, on the same day, of nine village plots, by CAPERS, CLARK & Co., was but slimly attended, and as those present seemed indisposed to bid for the property offered anything approximating to the real value, no transfer of title was made.

Today, at the Exchange, under Court orders, JOSEPH McGUIRE will offer at auction on the premises Nos. 127 and 129 West Broadway and the house and lot No. 16½ Hamilton-street, while JAMES M. MILLER will offer for sale the property No. 132 East One Hundred and Seventeenth-street. E. H. LUDLOW & Co. will also dispose of a valuable property located at Mount Vernon, Westchester County, and six village plots, together containing forty acres of land, known as the "Post farm," situate near Yonkers, in the same county. At New-Brighton, Staten Island, today, on the ground, at 2½ P. M., JESSE JOHNSON, Jr., will sell at auction twenty-odd eligibly-located village lots. Pine-street, reported having recently disposed of four lots on the north-east corner of One Hundred and Forty-seventh-street and the Grand Boulevard, together with one lot in the rear fronting on street, for $24,000. Also, two lots on the west side of Eighth-avenue, 76 feet 8 inches north of Seventy-sixth-street, for $55,000. The sale of the Continental Hotel at Long Branch for $128,000 is also reported.

DR. UNDERHILL'S Croton Point Property ON THE HUDSON FOR SALE!

By order of the Supreme Court, Adrian H. Muller will sell at auction, under the direction of the referee, the magnificent estate of the late Dr. R. T. Underhill, deceased, containing about 40 acres of land, with mansion house and appropriate buildings. The sale will take place on the premises, on FRIDAY, the 14th day of June next, at 4 o'clock P. M.

This is beyond question the finest property in the United States for a gentleman's residence, or for a college or theological seminary.

It would make six or eight superb country seats. The house is of stone, facing the river, and the surrounding mountains, from the Highlands to the Palisades.

Distance from New-York, thirty-three miles; from Croton Station, on Hudson River Railroad, two miles.

For further particulars inquire of WM. A. UNDERHILL, Croton Point, or R. H. UNDERHILL, No. 67 Pine-st., New-York. ADRIAN H. MULLER, Auctioneer, No. 7 Pine-st., New-York. Persons desiring to visit the property will find a conveyance at Croton, on the arrival of the train which leaves the 42d-st. depot, New-York, at 9:10 o'clock A. M.

SOMERS, WESTCHESTER COUNTY, N. Y.

HUGH N. CAMP

Will sell at auction, on

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26, 1872,

At 1 o'clock,

on the premises,

the following described property of Benjamin F. Camp, Esq.:

The property contains about 270 acres of land, situated in the town of

SOMERS, Westchester County, N. Y.,

within one mile of Purdy's Station, and within one hour and a half of New-York. The land is in the highest state of cultivation, no waste land, splendid meadow, pasture and tillage, with 40 feet deep, in perfect order; also new building, 40x100 feet, arranged for Club-house or academy. Sixty acres of level ground, suitable for a

RACE TRACK.

Also, a grist and saw mill, 25 feet head of water and a never-failing stream; barn and stable room for 100 head of cattle; four apple orchards and one pear orchard, and other choice fruits. Also

FRONTING A LAKE.

Fences, &c., in good order.

Water in all parts of house, which is, in every respect, a

GENTLEMAN'S ESTABLISHMENT.

The town of Somers is unsurpassed for its healthy climate, the atmosphere being dry and especially adapted for weak lungs.

QUICK TRANSIT having become a certainty largely enhances the value of this property.

Large portion of purchase-money can remain on bond and mortgage.

JEROME PARK.

The Fourth Day of the Spring Meeting.

Four Good Races—Ruskin Wins the Mile and an Eighth—Winnesap, Lochiel, and Tubman the Others.

Yesterday was the fourth day of the present Spring meeting of the American Jockey Club, and will henceforth be noted as one of the brightest in its history. A clear sky and genial sunshine compensated for the previous "ante disposition" of the weather clerk, and under the exhilarating influence of a refreshing atmosphere, the many thousands who visited the races were repaid in witnessing rare sport. There was no dust, and the road to the course, whether for pedestrians or equestrians, presented equal opportunities of enjoyment. On arriving at the course, a most animated scene was presented to the eye. Fashion, the imperious goddess that governs the world with a golden wand, was duly represented by the elegantly-dressed ladies who were present in large numbers, and contributed to making the reunion yesterday an important event in the social circles of Gotham. At length the hour for the races to commence had arrived, and the attention of the spectators was called to the sport.

The Racing.

The racing was opened with a dash of a mile and an eighth, for a purse of $500, which was won by the bay colt Buckden, imported by Messrs. HUNTER & TRAVERS when a yearling. He promises to become a prominent candidate for honors during the season that has opened so auspiciously. The second race of two miles and a quarter was won by Winesap, but in slow time, viz., 4:18¾—a quarter of a second slower than Bassett in the cup race in the mud on Saturday. The third race for members was run by Lochiel, the winner of the hurdle race on Saturday, and the fourth race of mile heats was one of the finest contests ever witnessed, and was won by Tubman, the sire and grandsire of War Dance and grandson of the famous Lexington. The excitement during this contest ran high, and the supporters of the Eastern and Western stables cheered their respective champions as one or the other came in ahead. Below will be found full details of the racing:

THE FIRST RACE.

This was a purse of $1,500 for three-year olds, a mile and an eighth; entrance-money to second horse; winners of the Ladies' Stakes, 5 pounds; of the Belmont Stakes, 7 pounds extra; of the Belmont Stakes, seven pounds; beaten maidens allowed seven pounds. There were five entries as follows, viz.: D. J. CROUSE'S ch. c. Business, by Revolver, out of Syren, by Oliver; D. D. WITHERS' br. f. Mimi, by imp. Eclipse, out of imp. Manola; HUNTER & TRAVERS' imp. b. c. Buckden, by Lord Clifton, out of Consequence; JOHN F. CHAMBERLAIN'S gr. c. Brennus, by Lightning, out of Brenna, by imp. Knight of St. George, and P. LORILLARD'S b. f. Girl of the Period, by Vergil, out of Maude Bodley. As they were all evenly weighted, the contest promised to be a close affair, and the knowing ones were nonplussed for the nonce and unable to judge the winner, although most of them centred on Buckden and Business, as the following quotations of the betting will show:

Buckden	$350	$405	$700
Business	300	350	650
Girl of the Period	200	210	410
Mimi	110	140	250
Brennus	65	100	165
	$1,025	$1,205	$2,070

THE RACE.

Owing to the fractiousness of the Girl of the Period, some difficulty was experienced in getting them off. At last the flag fell to a good start, and Mimi jumped off in the lead, but Buckden immediately assumed the lead. When they came past the stand Buckden was first, Business second, Brennus third, Mimi fourth, and Girl of the Period in the rear. They went round the turn in the same positions, but before reaching the quarter Business challenged Buckden, and passed that point a neck in front. The Girl in the meantime passing Mimi and Brennus, and taking third place as they reached the bluff. Business was still leading a neck, but as they went out of sight Buckden, Business, the Girl, and Brennus were close together, with Mimi last. On the lower turn Buckden and Business were lapped, and close behind them were the Girl and Brennus, lapped. The race was a fine one of the stretch to the furlong pole, when Buckden came away and won the race by ten lengths, Brennus second, a length in front of Business, third, the fourth, and Girl of the Period fifth. Time—2:00.

SUMMARY.

FIRST RACE—Purse $500, for three-year olds. Entrance money to second horse; winner of the Ladies' Stakes, 5 pounds; of the Belmont Stakes, 7 pounds extra; beaten maidens allowed 7 pounds; one mile and an eighth.

Hunter & Travers' b. c. Buckden, by Lord Clifton, out of, Consequence, by Bay Middleton. Gray.....1

J. F. Chamberlain's gr. c. Brennus, by Lightning, out of Brenna, by imp. Knight of St. George. Barney.....2

D. J. Crouse's ch. c. Business, by Revolver, out of Syren, by Oliver. Palmer.....3

D. D. Withers' br. f. Mimi, by imp. Eclipse, out of Hennie Furrow, by imp. Shamrock. Wall.....4

L. L. Lorillard's b. f. Girl of the Period, by Vergil, out of Mamie Bailey, by Lexington. Denman.....5

Time—2:00.

SECOND RACE.

The next race on the card to be decided was a selling race for a purse of $800, with entrance money to second horse—two miles and a quarter. The winner subject to be claimed for $3,000. If entered to be sold for $2,000 allowed 2 pounds; for $1,500 5 pounds; for $1,000 7 pounds. If entered to be sold for $5,000 to carry 5 pounds, and if not to be sold 13 pounds extra. The four that sported colors were: THOS. W. DOSWELL'S b. m. Midday, 5 years, by imp. Eclipse, out of Ninette, by Revenue, and b. f. Winesap, 4 years, by Vandyke, out of Nina, by Boston; JOHN H. HARBECK'S ch. c. Edwin, 4 years, by Eugene, out of Cordelia Reed, and JOHN O'DONNELL'S b. c. Asteroid, 4 years, by Asteroid, out of Lavender, by Wagner.

It was not a hard matter to pick the winner out of this lot, and of course the betting was similar to the handle of a jug. But these are those who take the short side in every event and trust to luck, and while the race was as sure to fall into the grasp of the Donnell stable as the Westchester Cup to McDaniel's, the betting was lively at the following figures:

Midday	$1,000
Winesap	1,000
Asteroid colt	375
Edwin	350
Total	$2,725

THE RACE.

The distance being two miles and a quarter, they were started from the three-quarter pole, and when the flag fell Edwin jumped off first, with Midday second, the Asteroid colt third, and Winesap behind. When they came up the homestretch, the Asteroid colt came to the front and passed the stand a length and a half in front of Edwin, Winesap third, and Midday fourth. Going round the turn, the Asteroid colt got further away, and reached the quarter-pole three lengths in front of Edwin, Winesap a length and a half ahead of Winesap, who was two lengths in front of Midday. As they passed under the turn at the bluff Edwin bolted to the outside and lost his position, Winesap taking the second place, while Edwin fell behind Midday. When they appeared in sight at the lower turn the Asteroid colt was still increasing the pace, and passed the three-quarter pole two lengths in the lead, the others in the same position as before, but closer together. Coming up the homestretch again, Winesap came upon the leader, and after a fine brush passed the stand first, a half a length in front of the colt, Midday third and Edwin fourth. On the turn the colt and Winesap were on even terms again, passing the quarter-pole but a head in advance. At the bluff the Asteroid colt began to tire, and Winesap got away from him a length, the colt being four lengths from Midday. Thus they went out of sight. On the lower turn Midday got up second, with Edwin close up third, and the Asteroid fully four out. As they were coming home Midday came up the homestretch, Edwin came with a rush, and at the furlong pole Winesap, Midday, and Edwin were on even terms. Almost brilliant finish was the result, Winesap winning by a head only, while Midday and Edwin made a dead heat, the colt beaten off a long distance. Time—4:18¾.

SUMMARY.

SECOND RACE—Purse $800; entrance money to second horse; the winner subject to be claimed for $3,000. If entered to be sold for $2,000, allowed three pounds; for $1,500, five pounds; for $1,000, seven pounds. If entered to be sold for $5,000 to carry five pounds; if not to be sold, twelve pounds extra. Two miles and a quarter.

Thos. W. Doswell's b. m. Midday, 5 years, by imp. Eclipse, out of Ninette, by Revenue. Mr. Gilmore.....1

J. H. Harbeck's ch. c. Edwin, 4 years, by Eugene, out of Cordelia Reed, by Wagner, 3d pounds. Scoles.....2

John O'Donnell's b. c. Asteroid, 4 years, by Asteroid, out of Lavender, by Wagner, 101 pounds. Holloway.....3

Time—4:18¾.

THIRD RACE.

This was a Post Stake of $50 each, play or pay, with $600 added; a mile and an eighth, with weight for age; members of the Club only to ride. The entries were Capt. COSTER'S br. h. Climax, aged, by imp. Baltroosic, dam Jessie, by Arab; J. E. LAWRENCE'S br. h. Lochiel, 6 years, by imp. Scottish Scotland, out of Bonnet, by Lexington; Mr. CLAYTON'S b. c. Lord Byron, 4 years, by Kentucky, out of Lady Blessington, by imp. Echo; Mr. CENTER'S b. c. Ruskin, by Jerome Edgar, out of L'Angleise, by Robbie Noble; and Mr. PURDY'S b. m. Flora Melver, by Lexington, out of Florida, by Wagner. The reappearance of the most old campaigner Climax, in competition with his juniors, was hailed with satisfaction, and he was steadily backed by his old admirers, who had often witnessed his game struggle under the heavy weights. They remembered, too, when he ran his mile on the same course in 1:46¾, carrying 148¾ pounds, and with so good a horseman as Capt. ELWARD to steer him. Victory seemed within his grasp. Lochiel, who proved himself a good horse in beating Bloodhound in the hurdle race of Saturday, was freely backed as favorite, but the following figures will tell the whole story:

Climax	$400	$200	$600
Lochiel	325	1,000	1,325
Lord Byron	100	75	175
Glenelg	100	50	150
Flora Melver	300	150	115
Total	$1,225	$1,475	$2,700

THE RACE.

They were started from the furlong pole half way down the Lenox track, and at the fall of the flag Glenelg rushed off first and Lochiel second, the others together. When they came past the stand Lochiel was first, Glenelg second, Byron third, Climax fourth and Flora Melver fifth. In this way they were round the turn to the quarter-pole, where Lochiel was leading two lengths, Glenelg still second, and the others together. The race round the remainder of the course was between Lochiel and Climax, and as the pair came up the homestretch a fine struggle ensued, but when nearing the goal Climax drew up, and Byron beat the others a good third from him. Lochiel came in first, three lengths in front of Byron, who was two lengths ahead of Climax, Glenelg fourth, and Flora Melver fifth and far behind. Time—3:56¾. The following is a

SUMMARY.

THIRD RACE—Post Stakes of $50 each, half forfeit, with $600 added; weight for age; members of the Club to ride. Mile and an eighth. Closed on the 6th June; one mile and an eighth.

Coffin & Lawrence's (Captain Coster's) b. c. Lochiel, 4 years, by imp. Scottish Scotland, out of Bonnet, by Lexington. 148 pounds.....1

A. Clayton's b. c. Lord Byron, 4 years, by Kentucky, out of Lady Blessington, by imp. Eclipse. 148 pounds.....2

C. F. Elwood' br. h. Climax, aged, by imp. Baltrowzie, out of Jewel, by Arab. 148 pounds.....3

R. Center's b. c. Ruskin, 4 years, by Jerome Edgar, out of L'Angleise, by Robbie Noble, 120 pounds.....4

A. E. Purdy's b. m. Flora Melver, aged, by Lexington, out of Florida, by Wagner.....5

Time—3:56¾.

FOURTH RACE.

This was mile heats, for a purse of $700, in which there were four contestants, viz.: Col. MCDANIEL'S ch. h. Tubman, JNO. HARPER'S b. h. Lyllieton, CARROLL & COAR'S br. h. Ortolan, and J. W. HUNT REYNOLDS' ch. h. Metella. This sort of race is a favorite with Western and Southern turfmen, and they therefore floated over the prospect of a magnificent contest between such good entries as those mentioned above. Col MCDANIEL'S stable being in such admirable running order, his representative, Tubman, was freely backed as the favorite as follows:

Tubman	$1,400	$1,000
Lyttleton	1,325	900
Ortolan	900	275
Metella	50	50
Total	$3,725	$2,225

FIRST HEAT.—Ortolan jumped away in the lead, with Lyttleton second, Tubman third, and Metella fourth, all close up. Ortolan made the running round the turn, and was two lengths in the lead; but when he reached the quarter-pole, Lyttleton was within a length of him, and four lengths in front of Tubman. Metella fourth. They passed under the bluff without change of position, except that Tubman began to close upon Lyttleton. Thus they went out of sight. When they reappeared on the lower turn Tubman was found at second place, having passed Lyttleton, and on Ortolan's quarters. When they reached the three-quarter pole, Tubman handed Ortolan over, and on the homestretch came to the front, Lyttleton, in the mean time, coming with a rush and taking the second place. A magnificent race ended up the stretch, when Tubman came away and won the heat by a length, in 1:46¾; Lyttleton second, two lengths in front of Ortolan; Metella fourth.

SECOND HEAT.—Tubman now was a greater favorite than ever, and sold for $1,100. Lyttleton $260 and the other two $66. When they started off Tubman was first, but Lyttleton immediately took the lead from him, and showed the way round the turn—Tubman second, Ortolan third, lapped on the latter, and Metella in the rear. Thus they went round toward the quarter-pole. As they came under the cliff Lyttleton got away two lengths from Tubman, and the latter was the same distance ahead of Ortolan—Metella out of the race. They then went out of sight, but on reappearing Tubman was found to be lapping Lyttleton's quarter, and closing at every jump. When they reached the three-quarter pole, Tubman was showing his head in front, and when they turned into the stretch for home they were head and head. Now began one of the finest struggles ever witnessed. Up they came on even terms, the excitement increasing among the spectators at every bound the horses make. They come together and it is impossible to think which will win. Thus they come up to the stand, when Lyttleton, with a gallant spurt put his head under the wire first, amid the cheers of the spectators, Ortolan third, Metella fourth. Time—1:45¾.

A revolution now took place in the betting, Lyttleton being elevated in the estimation of the spectators, while Tubman correspondingly fell from his "high estate." Lyttleton ruled the favorite two to one. Ortolan and Metella were ruled out for not winning a heat, and the race was, therefore, reduced to a match.

THIRD HEAT.—They started away, with Lyttleton half a length the best of it, which he increased to a couple of lengths on the turn, and held that position. Tubman was well in hand, and waiting for a finish. At the quarter-pole Tubman got a little closer to Lyttleton, three lengths dividing them at that point. They kept in this position when they went out of sight, but on reappearing the spectators were surprised to find that Tubman was lapping his competitor, and coming away from him. When they reached the three-quarter pole Tubman was three-quarters of a length in front, and coming up the homestretch another grand struggle ensued; both of them got the whip freely, and it was nip and tuck to the finish, when Tubman made a rush, and won the heat by a head, in 1:46¼. The stirrup of Lyttleton broke on the lower turn, which probably had something to do with his defeat.

The Tax on Brokers' Capital—The Stock Exchange Bureau of Claims.

Some time ago the Stock Exchange in this City organized a Bureau of Claims, under the auspices of the Law Committee of the Board, for the purpose of affording an opportunity to such brokers as so desired to present their claims to the United States Government to receive back the amounts paid by them in accordance with the law exacting a tax of one-twenty-fourth of one per cent, on borrowed capital, or the margins upon which brokers carry on their business. This law, it is said, has always been a very obnoxious one to the members of the Stock Exchange, and constant efforts have been made to secure its repeal. The Bureau of Claims was established for the purpose of securing the signatures of those interested, and passing each in proportion to the amount of his claim, for the purpose of raising a fund large enough to pay for the services of an agent at Washington to bring the matter before Congress, to persistently urge the repeal of this law, and procure the repayment of what has already been collected.

Mr. DOUGLASS, the Secretary of the Bureau, has recently returned from Washington, where he has been hard at work, and reports that he has no doubt but that his efforts have been in great measure successful in procuring the abolition of the tax. Enough to have been compelled, it is said, to make use of much money to effect his purpose.

The Late Hon. William A. Whiteside.

Hon. WILLIAM A. WHITESIDE, member of Assembly for the Twenty-first District, died on Monday night at his residence, Fifth-avenue, near Eighty-sixth-street, aged forty-seven years. He returned from Albany, at the adjournment of the Legislature, completely prostrated. He was surrounded on the second night after his return by his numerous friends, and coming forward in the rain he made an address, refusing to put on an overcoat. He was very hoarse at the time, and it is supposed that exposure to wet and cold on the night in question accelerated his death, as he never left his house since. He was the only member from the City on the Railroad and Rapid-transit Committees, and worked hard; frequently all night. He was elected on the Democratic Reform ticket last November to the Assembly, and was formerly President of the West-side Association. He was also an active member of the East-side Association, and did more to forward the completion of the East-side Hall than any other man. He thoroughly identified himself with east-side improvements, and had had many interviews with Mr. VANDERBILT who is the rapid-transit question. He married an estimable lady about two years since, but has left no children. His remains will be interred at Woodlawn Cemetery to-morrow.

The flags of the City Hall were kept at half-mast yesterday in memory of Mr. WHITESIDE.

THE STRIKERS.

The Eight-Hour Movement Losing its Vigor.

The Singer Sewing-Machine Men Going Back to Work on the Old Basis—Other Societies Holding Out.

A meeting of the employés of the Singer Manufacturing Company was held yesterday afternoon at the New-York Assembly Rooms, corner Fifty-first-street and Second-avenue. There was a very large attendance. Mr. HENRY PEARNES, the Chairman, said that the object of the meeting was to give those men a chance of retaining to their work, at the former hours and wages. Five hundred workmen had already signed the roll, as being willing to return to work, and he now gave an opportunity for all to come forward and add their names. At this moment a crowd of those who had already signed the paper rushed around the room and took seats in the gallery, and immediately commenced to shout for eight hours, and stood for the men who wish to return to work. A great uproar ensued, during which the Police, who were present in large force, under the command of Capt. WALSH, of the Seventeenth Precinct, arrested several of the noisy parties and took them down-stairs. The Chairman then addressed the meeting, and remained since the commencement of the meeting. SINGER'S name cheered and HOWE'S men groaned. The noise was so great that the Chairman could not address the meeting. The Police then cleared the gallery, and the rioters retired to the street, calling for all eight-hour men to join them. But very few of Singer's men left the room. As soon as quietude was restored the Chairman called on the Secretary to read the following resolutions.

Resolved, That we, the employés of the Singer Manufacturing Company, declare our willingness to resume work as soon as the Company think proper to close their factories.

Resolved, That we declare ourselves innocent both to the Company and our fellow-workmen of the present insurrectionary movement to obtain eight hours as a legal day's work.

Resolved, That we declare ourselves willing to act always in harmony with our employers, deeming this our best policy to gain success in business life.

Resolved, That we, the undersigned, independent of all trade societies, Internationals, &c., and that in future they need not look to the Singer Co-operative League for their assistance in any acts of violence, as practiced by some of their leaders to others.

Resolved, That we express our confidence that the Singer Manufacturing Company will see to the complaints, or grievances, of some of their employés, particularly those who were imposed on, all bringing good prices. The sale will be continued to-night, and the pictures will be disposed of Thursday evening.

While EDWARD JOHNSON, a negro seaman, was buying clothes in a furnishing store in Coenties-slip, his pocket was picked of $100 by THOMAS A. SAYER, of No. 143 Forsyth-street, who was arrested and committed for trial at the Tombs yesterday.

THOMAS PRICE, who was stabbed in his house in Ninety-first-street by three men, several days ago, appeared in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday and made a complaint against THOMAS MCGIBNEY, one of the parties, who was held in $5,000 bail to answer.

PATRICK O'BRIEN, of No. 97 Market-street, went into the junk-store of DANIEL SULLIVAN, No. 53 Crosby-street, yesterday morning, and was knocked down and robbed of $300 by SULLIVAN and LOUIS PASCOUCHE, who were arrested, and held for trial at the Tombs yesterday.

The First Assembly District Union Republican Association met at No. 154 Franklin-street, yesterday evening, and resolutions indorsing the nominations of the Philadelphia Convention were adopted. Considerable accessions to the membership of the Association were made.

JOSEPH R. HUDSON, mate of the ship Pacific, lying at Pier No. 9 East River, while drunk went into the den No. 14 Dover-street, known as "The Hole in the Wall," and was robbed of his watch and chain by FREDERICK FRIGES and THOMAS HAMMOND, who were held for trial at the Tombs yesterday.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Yorkville will participate in the funeral ceremonies of the late Mr. WHITEHOUSE. The local organizations will meet at the hall, Eighty-sixth-street and Third-avenue, next Thursday, at 10½ A.M., and proceed to the residence of the family, corner of Fifth-avenue and Eighty-sixth-street.

HUGH OLWELL of No. 251 West Thirty-third-street, and CHAS. CONKLIN, of No. 316 East Seventeenth-street, while excavating at No. 60 Union-square, yesterday, were buried under a mass of earth which caved in upon them. When dug out, OLWELL was found to be seriously, and CONKLIN slightly injured. They were taken to Bellevue Hospital.

The Female Department of Grammar School No. 24 gave a reception yesterday afternoon at Irving Hall. Addresses and instrumental music formed the entertainment, which was very agreeable. Dr. ROBERTS, Rev. DR. TAYLOR, Mr. ANDREW CASH and Dr. O'SULLIVAN addressed the pupils, congratulating them upon their proficiency, and promising them an early vacation.

A post-mortem examination made yesterday in the case of Mr. AUGUST BROWN, so brutally murdered near his residence, No. 78 Lewis-street, on Saturday, while returning from the theatre with his wife, showed that his death resulted from concussion of the brain, consequent on an extensive fracture of the skull, resulting from the blows dealt him by his assailants.

On the 6th day of June, CHAUNCEY JOHNSON and one of his confederates were arrested for grand larceny, they having, on that date, entered the store of Mr. EDMUND DE BUCK, of No. 36 East Fourteenth-street, and, while they engaged the attention of the proprietor, the other confederate entered the counting-room, and stole $100. The escaped confederate was yesterday captured, and upon being taken before Judge LEDWITH, was committed without bail.

In the Superior Court, yesterday, before Judge MCCUNN and a jury, the case of JAMES MAHER vs. the Central Park and North and East River Railroad Company was tried. The plaintiff (a lad) sought to recover $10,000 damages for injuries sustained through the negligence of defendant. It appeared that the boy, by the invitation of the driver of one of defendant's cars, attempted to get on the front platform, and, as he did so, the car started; the plaintiff was thrown under the wheels, and so injured that one of his legs had to be amputated. The jury rendered a verdict for plaintiff for $5,000.

BROOKLYN.

There are $47,000 of permanent water loan bonds awaiting signature in the Mayor's office.

Rev. CHAS. S. POMEROY, pastor of the Rossiter Presbyterian Church, will start for a tour of Europe on Saturday.

The Williamsburg Schuetzen Corps will hold its sixth annual shooting festival to-day and to-morrow at the Myrtle-avenue Park.

Mrs. MARY FITZPATRICK, of No. 286 Van Brunt-street, who was horribly beaten by her husband last Saturday night, died of her injuries about 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

A child, three years old, named JAMES THOMPSON, was killed in front of his parents' residence, No. 57 South First-street, yesterday, by being run over by a Grand-street car.

PETER PETERSON, of No. 219 North Eighth-street, Williamsburg, shot himself fatally in the back with a revolver, on Monday night, while pursuing a cat through a dark passage in his house.

Rev. M. ALLISON, of Milwaukee, has not been engaged permanently by the Lee-avenue Congregational Church, as announced yesterday. He is only acting during his temporary stay in Brooklyn.

The inquest in the case of CATHARINE O. MELLE, who killed herself with rat poison on Sunday, was adjourned yesterday by Coroner WHITEHILL in order to ascertain how the druggists render themselves amenable to the law by selling poisonous materials without authority.

STATEN ISLAND.

To-morrow the annual gathering of the Sunday-schools will take place at the Reformed Church at Port Richmond.

A meeting will be held to-morrow, at the Smith Infirmary, Tompkinsville, for the purpose of electing trustees of the institution for the ensuing year.

Yesterday, FANNIE WHITE was arraigned before Justice GARRETT, at Stapleton, on a charge of stealing two valuable silk dresses from Mrs. EGBERT, at Tompkinsville, and was committed for examination.

LONG ISLAND.

The New-York Foundling Asylum has transferred forty of its little charges to the institution at Flushing recently purchased by it.

The farmers of the north side are subscribing for a horse-way to be laid along Jackson-avenue to Flushing. It will also be used for a horse-car route.

The Committee appointed to report on the best system of water supply for Flushing have recommended the Holly system. It will cost $150,000. Kissonna Lake will probably be used for the reservoir.

Last night, a GRANT and WILSON Club was organized in Newtown. Sixty persons signed their names to the roll. An adjourned meeting will be held on the 26th, when an election of officers will take place.

Yesterday afternoon the examination in the case of FRANKLIN HORTON for the shooting of ROBERT WHITE, at Far Rockaway, was concluded before Justice BRADLEE, in Jamaica. HORTON was committed without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Monday evening THOMAS MCAULIFF, a brakeman on the Flushing and North-side Railroad, while braking on a construction train, near Flushing, fell between the cars, four of which passed over his right shoulder, crushing it in a terrible manner. His recovery is very doubtful.

SIMON FLANNERTY, the man who assaulted the referees at the Newtown polls on election day, was yesterday morning taken to Sing Sing. A petition is being circulated praying the Governor to pardon him out. It has received a large number of signatures, including many of the officials of the county.

NEW-JERSEY.

The Northern Railway of New-Jersey commenced the running of strawberry-trains yesterday.

The trial of FREDERICK E. ROWALD, the defaulting City Clerk of Hoboken, was yesterday postponed to June 20.

A strawberry and ice-cream festival will be held by Christ Episcopal Church, at the engine-house, Columbia-street, to-morrow and Friday.

The Board of Managers of the Newark Industrial Exhibition have adopted their rules and regulations for the government of the enterprise. Applications are being made daily for exhibition room.

At the crossing of the railroads near Elizabeth, two accidents occurred last night which considerably delayed travel. On the New-Jersey Central Road, a misplaced switch threw three coal-cars of the track, completely blocking up the road, and on the New-Jersey Road the locomotive of the Washington train broke down. The track was not cleared till past 11.

DEAR SIR: My child was suffering from a slight congestion of the lungs, and high fever. Dr. FITCHER'S Cantoria was recommended to me, and it proved a most effectious remedy. She had not slept for two nights from excessive coughing, and after three doses of medicine, her fever had entirely left her and her sleep was perfectly natural.

MRS. J. SIMMONS, Brooklyn, N. Y.
